

THE CM. IN SOCIO. & ECONOMICS by Jos. A. Schumpeter

FE mentions in 1888 Preface that each moved toward CM positions for "some yrs before 1845" But when I again met Mx at Brussels in spring 1845, he had it already and it out & put it before me in terms almost as clear as those which I have stated it here. (p. 5 of Feuer coll.) (NB Jase April 1888 Mx TO FE writes that he has reread Holy Family & found nothing to "be ashamed of.") Moreover JS correctly notes that in those years "Engels was certainly further along as an economist."

1. Theory of His

p. 205 It is an essential feature of the Mxist system that it treats the social process as an (analytically) INDIVISIBLE WHOLE & uses only ONE CONCEPTUAL scheme in all its parts... social class... as a living, feeling, acting... IS ALSO THE CLASS OF HIS ECO. THEORY.

p. 205 "if Engels was right THE BIRTH OF ECO. INTERPRETATION OF HIS DATES FROM 1844 & Mx in Preface to the Critique says he considered it the leading thread in my studies."

"In the 2nd place, it must not be forgotten that Mx (deeply recoiled as he was in... in the Ger. ... had an enemy to fight & an obstacle to overcome that barred the way toward an acceptable THEORY OF HIS... the doctrine of "the general progress of the human mind" that made a purely intellectual PROCESS (THE CAUSALLY IMP... ind. variable in social his... the eco. interpretation had done nothing else except to beat back this kind of thing by compensatory overemphasis of "obj." eco. conditions, it would, because of this merit alone, have to stand high in the his. of eco....")

2. Theory of Class

p. 206 Nevertheless, Mxists are right in claiming that the sentence (his. of all society is his. of class struggles) contains the principle of a theory of the social process that was novel SPECIFICALLY MARXIST in the same sense AS was the eco. interpretation.

Even the significant terms "class culture" occurs in Manifesto; this part of Mx's ideology or analysis was so I believe fully developed (NEVER TO BE ALTERED) by 1847 (against Fr.)

p. 207: But Mx weakened his eco. theory of the class structure still further in order to fulfill his ideological desire to come out with the great battle array bet. bourgeoisie & prol...."

(rd class relations as "pivots of his THEORY OF HIS."; it is they which, in his system, implement the eco. interpretation of his.
p. 208: "In other words, the idea of making social classes & relations bet. them the pivots of the his. process & the conception of class culture & so on MIGHT prove analytically variable even if we refuse to accept Mx's particular theory of social classes."

p. 209: I believe that most historians will agree that it would be difficult to improve Mx's statements within the same space."
