PASSAIC, N. J., July 19 .- The general refief committee of textile striklite inquiry of Judge Gary's plant su- ers, 743 Main avenue, reports that it has been able to place Nina Morris. an underweight strikers' kiddie, sufhome of a physician for the summer. Nina is 12 years old, and is nine pounds underweight. She has been adopted for the summer by Dr. Mislig Michael of 42 West 93rd street, who will give her the medical attention she is so badly in need of.

The case of Nina is only one of hundreds being as efficiently handled by the general relief committee. The committee is placing hundreds of strikers' children in summer camps and in the homes of workers and sympathizers. A large percentage of the strikers' children are suffering from neart disease and other ailments These children are not sent to the nomes of sympathizers, but are either sent to camps where medical attencion is assured, or the general relief committee makes an effort to ge them adopted by friendly physicians as in the case of Nina.

Capitalist Finances in Insoluble Fix

(Special to The Daily Worker) LONDON, July 20 .- Upon the question of interallied debts, the house of commons yesterday plunged into a hostile criticism of the financial im perialism of the United States such as has been seldom heard, coupled with equally sharp attacks on Winston Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer, for being a bad manager of British ffnance to the benefit of America.

A labor party member, the Rev. C. Stephen, dramatically exclaimed: Can't Be Solved.

"The franc is going to hell and the ound is going after it. The French debt agreement is one more confession of the fact that the international finance problems are insoluble.'

Captain Wedgewood Benn, who raised the question, attacked the French debt agreement and declared that Churchill should have gotten lower tariff concessions and some step toward disarmament.

"Mussolini talks of peace in the shadow of the sword. The French are building up their air force in competition with the United States. Lloyd George Wants Cancellation.

Lloyd George openly declared that the agreement to pay Britain's debt to the United States was a mistake which had brought Europe into the present muddle

Phillip Snowden, who held Churchill's place in the labor government, rained statistics on the tory treasurer:

"The chancellor cannot claim that he made a good bargain with France or Italy. He has been beaten at every point. The United States made much better bargains. In 15 years it will be taking $400,000,000 a year from Europe. It will cost one day's labor by 320,000,000 workers in Europe to pay annual tribute to the United States.

The Strike. The cloakmakers' strike raises before the left wing some of the most complicated problems of the industry, chief among these the problem of the establishment of union control over the jobbers. The successful prosecution of this strike is now the chief problem, and every ounce of energy and ability must be concentrated upon this decisive struggle. The national conference will have to serve as a rallying center to mobilize support, moral, financial, organizational, for the fighting cloakmakers.

The conference has to take into consideration basic and important changes in the industry, consolidation of the employers organizationally and financially, new production methods and machinery, changes in tendency and composition of the various union bureaucracies, experience in strike methods and strategy, new aspects of the united front policy in the light of our experience. A NOTHER puzzling phenomenon is why anybody should be willing to essay the task of organizing a cabinet in France. Yet scores of applicants are rapping at the president's door whenever a cabinet bursts up. This happens now almost weekly. A French politician who did not star in at least half a dozen cabinets is considered a nonentity. # I. R. T. STRIKERS' DEMANDS BEFORE

N. Y. to Aid

NEW YORK, July 20. - The strike against the Interborough Rapid Transit company and its company un ion took a new turn today when the Consolidated Railroad Union, the real union build up by the strikers, anwith their wives and children marching in a body to the city hall to de mand that Mayor Walker intervene in run by scabs.

Fight Company Union.

The demonstration will take the form of a parade, with the 2,000 marchers bearing banners descriptive of a part, at least, of what they think of the company union. Animo, camarada, y que nuestra

In addition, the strikers have adressed an appeal to the organized workers of Greater New York which reads as follows:

To Organized Labor of Greater

New York. The strike of the employes of the Interborough Rapid Transit company is the concern of every member of or ganized labor in Greater New York. For years the conditions existing upon the trains of the elevated and subway lines of this greedy corporation have been a foul blot upon the labor movement of this city. Many sincere workers in the cause of organized labor had despaired of the traction workers ever again becoming a part of the great labor movement because of the fact that all of us were tied to the company union which existed only for the purpose of preventing us from receiving decent wages and condi-

We have been patient and long- suffering. We have been working unbearably long hours-56 hours per week in some departments, 84 hours per week in other departments-7 days per week for all employes. Some of our men have not had a single day off in five years.

While the cost of rents, food and very other necessity of life has adanced in price our wages remained tationary because we could not throw off the weight of the company union and fight for our rights.

Revolt Against Company Union.

At last conditions became so un bearable that we were forced to go out. Within a few days we split away from the company union which is the tool of Hedley and the corporation and went on strike. As you know, all Something that never happens in the the resources of the powerful company were hurled against us. We need your aid in this fight. Foremost of all we want your moral support. We want you to refuse to ride the I. R. T. lines while we are out. We also need financial support to enagainst this powerfful corporation.

If all organized labor, or even a good part of it in this city gets behind the strike we can make it so effective that in a short time we can force Hedley and his gang to grant us the very reasonable demands we have asked for and which even our enemies Pennsylvania Foreignconcede we are entitled to. # Workers and Farmers to Develop Struggle as Factories Invade Texas

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

FACTORIES lead farms in Texas," is the interesting news that comes from the "Lone Star

It is just another signpost indicating that "The South" is being industrialized, which means that capitalism is breeding those forces that accelerate the class struggle and its own abolition. . . .

J. Perry Burrus, president of the Texas State Manufacturers' Association, is proud of the showing. Last year the value of Texas agricultural products was put at $1,000-000,000. The total value of manufacturers amounted to almost as much. This year the value of agricultural products dropped a little, while the output of manufacturers has increased. Petroleum products make an especially good showing. It is predicted that the excess of manufacturers over agriculture this year will reach the $200,000,000 mark.

Thus the largest state in the union thrives in profit-taking under capitalism much more than it ever promised under the old slave-holding regime that ante-dated the civil war. It took more time than in some of the agricultural northern states but the process of industrialization goes on in "The Solid South" as well as in "The North."

The smokestacks of industry have become numerous within the borders of Texas only within the last 20 years. At the beginning of this period, in 1905, the value of the manufactured products of Texas totalled only $150,528,389, the capital invested in manufacturing being a paltry $115,664,871, and the number of factories, 3,158.

Most of the manufacturers originally grew out of the handling of farm products. Texas surpasses all other states in its cotton seed oil and cake products. During the period 1900-1905 the value of its flour and grist mill products doubled. Then there come slaughtering and meat packing; lumber and timber products; cars and general shop construction and repairs by steam railway companies; printing and publishing, foundry and machine shop products and lesser industries. It was upon these beginnings 20 years ago that Texas increased its manufactured products nearly seven times. During the period from 1890 to 1908 the value of mineral products increased eight times.

It was not until the civil war that Texas could boast of any considerable railway mileage. In 1860 there were only 307 miles of railways in the state. By 1908 this had gone to 13.066.

Texas is populated by the "nativeborn." Of the population in 1900 we find that 94.1 per cent was native-born, 79.6 per cent was native white and 20.4 per cent (or 620,722) native Negro. Many of the native-born inhabitants came from other southern states like Tennessee, Alabama, found among the Mexicans. There has always been a healthy spirit of discontent among the farmers of Texas. They have had and still have their Renters' Unions. their Tenants' Leagues and other organizations to fight for their economic and political interests. These names imply that there are large numbers of landless farmers in Texas. And there are.

Mississippi, Georgia and Arkansas,

There are 88,537 farms in Texas of between 50 and 100 acres. But there are also 11,220 farms of 1,000 acres and more. There are also 10,183 farms of between 500 and 1,000 acres. This means that among the tenants, crop farmers and farm workers there are considerable elements ready to be organized into the struggle against the rich farmers, the bankers, the railroads, the food speculators and the landlords. These elements will find new leadership in the industrial profetariat that is growing ever more numerous in the cities. The barometer indicating the increase in the state's manufactured products therefore measures the growing ability of the exploited workers and farmers to fight for their own interests.

Texas is overwhelmingly democratic at the present time. Nevertheless it is a political hotbed. The socialist party always got a good vote in the state in the days before the war. In 1924 the vote was: Davis, democratic, 484,605; Coolidge, republican, 130,023, and LaFollette, progressive, 42,881. In 1920 there were presidential candidates of the democratic, the republican, the "American," socialist and "Black and Tan" republican parties, indicating the conflicting political trends in

The increased industrialization of the state will undoubtedly be dominated, as it is even now to a large extent, by outside capital-the oil industry by the oil trust; the packing industry by the food trust; the mineral industry by the various coupon-clipping absentee mine owners; the railroads by distant holders of transportation stocks. Thus Texas develops a growing class of workers struggling to produce profits for parasites who may live in New York, Boston or Europe

This must inevitably create an identity of interest, irrespective of race and nationality, between the city and land workers in the New Texas, who will not be satisfied with a LaFollette "progressive" party, or some other makeshift "third" party. but who will struggle to build for independent political action of their own under the lead of the Labor Party. The factories are invading Texas. Above the factories go up the standards of the workers and the farmers struggling to win liberation from capitalist exploitation. The southern landholding aristocracy lost their chattel slaves. The Texas capitalists, in common with those of the rest of the land, will lose their wage slaves.

FARM BLOC IS OUT FOR POWER, SAYS NORBECK

N. D. Senator Predicts Break in Party Lines

(Special to The Daily Worker) WASHINGTON, July 20. - The American farmer, "coming into his wn" as a politician, will use the November elections to give the "farm bloc' 'a new balance of power in congress, Senator Peter G. Norbeck, republican of South Dakota, an agriculture leader, predicted today on the eve of leaving for the west to open his campaign for re-election. "The battle of the men behind the plows for economic relief," Norbeck said, "will plunge across party lines and center upon issues and the candidates who support them." The movement in the west, he added, will grow 'until the farmers will have sufficient voting strength to decide the presidential elections of the future."

Balance of Power.

"Agriculture now holds the balance of power between the two great political parties," said Norbeck. "There has been but one example of its strength. In 1916 agriculture elected a democratic president by giving him the republican states of the northwest. Even then agriculture was unorgan-

"Now the farmers are coming into their own. They are gradually being organized into a political unit. They know more about men and issues and are voting their convictions down the line. Possibly in the next presidential campaign and certainly by the succeding one, agriculture will be well organized and it will be the deciding factor in presidential elections. The man who can win the presidency in the future must have the support of agriculture, no matter upon what ticket he runs.

Expect Increase in Strength. "In the meantime, the farmers will concentrate on electing a congress favorable to its interests. In the next year, I believe, a great increase of strength will be shown in the farm bloc, sufficient to make it a balance of power in congress."

Norbeck pointed out that in the last session of congress, altho the farmers were unable to get their pet measure enacted, they were able to defeat all substitutes.

"The fellows up for re-election this fall were particularly careful how they voted," he added.

Shatter Party Lines. "Party lines have been gradually breaking down in the northwest for the last fifteen years. Our people look at the men and the issues instead of

All Amy Leaves Are Cancelled for Year

WARSAW, July 20. - All military leaves for the remainder of the year have been cancelled at the order of Marshal Joseph Pilsudski following a conference of the military chiefs here.

Plan to Distract Attention.

This move of Pilsudski is looked upon by the anti-Pilsudski forces as an attempt to raise a war scare and if need be to enter into a war in order to distract the attention from the real political situation in Poland and to avoid issuing a statement as to his political policy. Pilsudski has been losing rapidly in favor among the workers and in the Diet.

German-Lithuanian Conspiracy.

The Pilsudski press is printing lengthy articles of a conspiracy between Germany and Lithuania to attack Poland. The Pilsudski press in dispatches states that the Lithuanian army is preparing to move onto Vilna and that the troops are singing the "March on Vilna."

Other dispatches tell of Soviet border patrols firing on Polish sentries. Conservative journals, opposed to Pilsudski, that have correspondents at the places from which the alleged press dispatches are sent have been unable to find a basis for the news in the Pilsudski press.

A report purported to have been made by the pacifist Herr Foerster at a secret meeting of a socialistic club in Berlin disclosing that as Germany under the Versailles treaty was denied the right to manufacture or store war materials she has made an agreement with Lithuania to have ammunition plants and warehouses is being printed. At any future time that Germany may war with any one of the powers. Lithuania would produce munitions for Germany. Lithuania's reward is to be the return of Vilna and the territory seized by Gen. Zeligowski under the Pilsudski regime in 1921.

Press Ridicules War Scare.

The opposition press have ridiculed this statement of the Pilsudski press and declare that as feeling between Lithuania and Poland has been bitter since 1921 that Pilsudski is attempting to capitalize it in a warscare and make more secure his hold on the Polish state.

MANILA, P. I., July 20 .- All hopes that the Philippines may get complete independence thru mere asking, were blasted in a speech made by Colonel Carmi A. # TEXTILE UNION ENDS ITS MEET IN LAWRENCE

Will Support Passaic Workers' Strike

LOWRENCE, Mass., July 20 .- The closing of the four day session of the eleventh convention of the American Federation of Textile Operatives marks the end of one of the most sucessful annual meetings of this union, according to expressions of both officials and delegates leaving for their local fields of activities.

The convention was called to order by President James Tansey, and after hearing the report of the credentials committee which favored the seating of all delegates numbering 63, Alfred Wagenknecht, chairman of the Passaic textile strike relief commitee, addressed the convention.

Strike of National Importance.

"This strike is not only of local significance," said Wagenknecht. "Its influence is reaching out into every part of this country. The bosses in Lawrence had already posted notices of wage cuts in the mills, but when the strike started in Passaic these notices were taken down and the mill owners in the East have not dared to cut the wages. If we win all the country will be stronger. We need relief to keep up the fight and the Passaic strikers will fight to the finish with the unions backing them as they have done up till now."

The convention voted the speaker n expression of appreciation and oledged continued support to the heoic men and women who have fought o bravely in Passaic.

J. O. Bentall, editor of the Textile Strike Bulletin, was seated as fraernal delegate from the united front committee of textile workers. The report of the president and of

A resolution urging special attention to the organization of the unorganized was heartily supported, and plans laid for an intensive campaign in this direction.

A sizzling resolution against the ompany unions was adopted, conemning the entire principle as unound and not in the interest of the workers.

For Labor Party. A strong resolution for a Labor Party was unanimously adopted amid nuch enthusiasm. It was evident hat the convention has lost all respect for the old parties and that the lelegates were ready to push forward to the establishment of a party of the workers.

James Tansey was re-elected presilent and William E. G. Batty was unanimously re-elected secretary. A strong executive board was chosen and work for the coming year mapped out that promises much progress and a big advance among the textile

CHICAGO LABOR MOVEMENT MUST BACK LADIES' GARMENT WORKERS' UNION IN FIGHT ON INJUNCTIONS

By I. L. DAVIDSON.

Organizer Chicago Joint Board of the International Ladies Garment Workers' Union.

THE fight of the Ladies' Garment Workers in the City of Chicago against the injunction menace is not only a fight of that organization. It would be an error for organized labor to think that after these men and women who are now serving in the Cook county jail are freed that the struggle against the injunctions will be over. The injunction issue is important to all organized labor and should arouse mass activity against it as long as there is a judge who misinterprets the law by using injunctions in labor disputes. Machinists' Union.

Here are two recent occurrences, aside of many similar ones in the past, which will prove our contention. The machinists' district council decided upon an organization drive and after a few months of activity-just as their drive began to be effective-the employers applied for an injunction. Without a moment's hesitation this writ of injunction was issued. Similar is the case of the Waiters' and Cooks' Union, who had an injunction issued against them shortly after they started an organization drive.

Break Wall of Silence. Can organized labor remain silent and leave this matter rest? The answer to this question raises another question. Can organized labor decide not to carry on organization work? Unquestionably, the answer is "no," regardless whether the worker or the official of the union belongs to the progressive or so-called conservative group. Labor cannot afford, if it wants to uphold its right of existence, to permit this injunction menace in labor

Class Justice.

There is one thing that must be understood, and that is that we cannot get any justice from those who are interested to interpret justice for the employing class. The best proof of this is the recent action of Governor Len Small. The governor, before the last election, posed as a friend of labor and made numerous statements to this effect in some of the press. In fact, the official labor bodies, seeking the favor of Len Small endorsed him and his slate for office.

What Has Small Done?

What has Governor Small done for case that arouses the protest of every were a private instead of a labor case, and women who have left children as

These men and women have committed no crime. Their only "crime" was to speak to their fellow-workers of the non-union shops during the time of the strike that they join the union and help them to better conditions. No one can claim that this is a crime against the community. No one can charge that they have interfered with law and order in this city. Governor Small has not yet answered the strong appeal made to him by representatives of the clergy and of the liberals of this state. He did not even find it necessary to answer the people who appealed to him and to reply to the numerous telegrams sent to him as to what his intentions are in these

Labor cannot depend on friends like Len Small and others of his class. There is only one way in which labor can fight against the injunction menace in labor disputes. That is by mass activity. It is the duty of every worker in this city to rally to the support of the Ladies' Garment Workers' Union in their fight against injunctions and for the release of their members. Their members are serving in prison not only for what they have committed during their 1924 strike, but are serving because of lack of action on the part of organized labor in this situation. The Ladies' Garment Workers have began their fight. They call upon all workers for their unanimous support.

Attend Protest Meeting.

The protest meeting which has been arranged for Thursday, July 22, at the Temple Hall, Marshfield avenue and Van Buren street, at 8 p. m. must be filled with workers of all trades. The protest against injunctions and the imprisonment of workers for violation of labor since he is in office? Here is a the injunction must be heard as loud as organized labor can make it, so freedom-loving person. ## 3,000 MINERS ON STRIKE IN WEST VIRGINIA

Picket Lines Seven Miles Long

PURSGLOVE, W. Va., July 20. The call issued July 5 by the United Mine Workers, District 31, including. twelve counties of northern West Virginia and affecting 40,000 miners, marks a deciding turning point in this important coal section.

For more than three years this section has been the scene of continous strikes. In 1923 it was close to 90 per cent organized with more than 25,000 miners in the United Mine Workers of America.

Open-Shop Drive.

In April, 1924, the coal operators started this open-shop drive and in June the Bethlehem Steel Corporation broke its agreement. It was followed by the Consolidated Coal Company, which controlled about 60 per cent of production of the entire field. From this date until April, 1926, every strike has resulted in the defeat of the union.

On April 1 the James Pasley in terests, which operated the three mines with over 1,000 men, broke their agreement, and were followed by the Pursglove Mining Co., with 1,000 men. This was later followed by the Gilbert Davis Co., with 500 which was the last union mine in the Scotts Run section.

years under the Jacksonville agreement. On April 1 they posted notice of a 20 per cent reduction, which meant the 1917 scale.

Miners Strike.

To this the miners responded with strikes which completely tied up production. In the three months up to July 1 the operators, with non-union miners, reached less than 20 per cent of production. With the strike of July 5 this production has been reduced to 5 per cent.

Non-Union Mines.

In the mines that were operating as non-union it is conservatively estimated that by July 18 the strike will become more than 75 per cent effective as hundreds of miners are joining the union daily.

Mass Picketing.

It is a real strike with only 3,000 men with women and children on the picket lines, The picket lines at times reach seven miles—the entire length of the field.

The spirit of determination of the miners is good. These miners realize that they must win now or be completely driven from the field.

Another Useless Pageant of Peace

Aristocratic women of England were the initiators of this peace pageant in Hyde Park, held as a protest against future wars. But at that very moment the miners were fighting for their lives in Wales and the English coal fields. The women said nothing about this war. The only ones who will be able to stop the next war are the British miners who are fighting a severe battle now, and the rest of the workers in England when they again demonstrate their power thru a show of solidarity such as they displayed during the general strike.

NEW ORLEANS-(FP)-By a vote of 900 to 658 the street carmen's union rejected the contract offered by the New Orleans Public Service, Inc., which would permit the company to employ nonunion men alongside the closed shop men. The only question strike. at issue was the open shop clause, the union having indicated its willingness to renew the old contract.

The contract submitted by the company provided that new employes could join the union or not at their own discretion; old employes could continue membership and the union could function as at present. Ed Villon, president of the union, denounces the proposed contract as a direct step toward the open shop.

"CITIZEN'S COMMITTEE" FAILS IN ATTEMPT TO DESTROY THE UNITY OF 16,000 PASSAIC TEXTILE STRIKERS at Stelton, N. J.; and others to Chat-

PASSAIC, N. J., July 20 .- The textile baron's starvation offensive having een defeated by the splendid support organized labor has given the 16,000 striking textile workers, the mill bosses are now attempting to cut off strike relief. Astoundingly impudent as it may sound, the mill owners have inected themselves into the American labor movement.

The textile barons have not invaded the labor movement in person. They are far too clever for that. The newly organized committee of strikebreakers, calling itself the "Citizen's Committee" is doing the work for them. And this committee of paunch-bellied bankers and merchants is using a letter from Henry F. Hilfers for their purpose. Under the lying and diabolical heading "Strike Is Lost" they have inserted page advertisements in the local press, in which they copiously quote+

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

J. Arnold Ross, oil operator, formerly Jim Ross, teamster, drives with his thirteen-year-old son, Bunny, to Beach City to sign a lease for a new oil field. Meeting his "Lease Hound," Ben Skutt, in a hotel he goes to meet a group of small property owners whose land he wants for drilling. But other oil concerns have been intriguing and the meeting breaks up in a row. Bunny meet Paul Watkins, son of a Holy Roller, who has run away from home. They become friends but Paul leaves for other parts before their acquaintance is very oil. Dad begins to drill in Prospect Hill near Beach City. He needs the roads fixed and smooths the palm of a city official. In short order his first well, "Ross-Bankside No. 1," is begun. Dad spends busy days in his little office and Bunny is always with him—learning about oil. Bertie, Bunny's sister, comes home from finishing school on a vacation. She is very snobbish. Her Aunt Emma has been trying to make a lady of her. Bunny tells Bertle about Paul. Bertle doesn't like Bunny to know such "Horried Fellows." In the meantime Dad is getting along with his well. With many careful and toilsome mechanical operations, Ross-Bankside No. 1 is ready to drill and by noon the next day has fined up the first tank. In a week Dad had several more derricks underway. He was working hard with everything coming his way. Bunny asks his Dad to take a rest and go quail hunting over in the San Elido vailey. Dad protests that it's too far away and is told that that's where Paul's family is and they're up against it and Bunny wants to help them. Finally Dad was persuaded. They get their camping outfit ready and the next day arrive at the Watkins ranch. The old man welcomes them and with little Eli and the three girls tagging behind show them a place where they can camp. In hunting for quail on the Watkins' ranch, Bunny and Dad find oil oozing out of the ground. Dad, after satisfying himself that there is oil on the land, decides to buy the Watkins ranch. Dad goes Into the house with Mr. and

"Now, Mr. Hardacre," said Dad, 'let's you and me talk turkey. I want to buy some land, if it can be got reasonable. Of course as soon as people find you want it they begin to boost the price; so let's get that clear, I want it jist enough to pay a fair them "exploited"—even for their own price, and I don't want it no more than that, and if anybody starts a-boostin' you jist tell 'em to forget it and I'll forget it, too. But all the land you can buy reasonable, you buy for me, and collect your commission from the seller in the regular way, and besides that, you'll get a five per cent commission from me. That means I want you to be my man, and do everything you can to get me the land at the lowest prices. I don't need to point to you that my one idea is to buy quick and quiet, so people won't have time to decide there's a boom on. You get me?'

"Yes," said Mr. Hardacre. "But I'm not sure how quickly can be done; this is a pretty small place, there's lots of talk,

"It won't take no time at all if you jist handle it my way and use good sense. You don't mention me, and do the buyin' for an unknown client, and you buy options for cash-that means, if the people are hereabouts, you close the reals right off."

"But that'll take quite a bunch of money," said Mr. Hardacre, a little frightened.

"I got a little change in my pocket," said Dad, "and I brought cashier's check for three thousand, that I can turn into cash in the mornin'. You see, Mr. Hardacre, I happen to be jist crazy about quail shootin,' and I had the idea that if I found plenty of quail, I'd get a little land to shoot over. But get this clear, I can shoot quail on one hill jist as well as on the next-and don't let nobody mistake me for a quail!"

Dad took out of his card-case a letter from the president of a big bank in Angel City, advising whomever it might concern Slovak girl who looked nine or ten that Mr. James Ross was a man of large resources and the highest integrity. Dad had two such letters, as Bunny knew-one in the name of James Ross and the other in the name of J. Arnold Ross; the former was the one he used when he bought oil lands, and no one had ever yet got onto his identity in time!

Dad's proposition was this: He would make a contract with Mr. Hardacre, whereby Mr. Hardacre was authorized to buy ten-day options upon a long list of tracts, of specified acreage and at specified prices, paying five per cent upon the purchase zen's Committee, to Passaic health of price for each option, and Dad agreeing to take up all these options within three days, and to pay Mr. Hardacre five per cent on falsehood, show to what limits the into going back to the mills on the who deny that the strikers' children all purchases. #### What About It. Mr. Green?

The attack by the executive council of the American Federation of Labor upon the strike of the underpaid textile workers in Passaic was what the 4th of August meant. has had repercussions in many quarters. The statement of the executive council has been considered, and rightly so, an invitation to the textile barons to do their worst and an assurance that no matter what new atrocities they and their private detective agencies may invent for and inflict upon the struggling men, women and children of Passaic, the executive council of the A. F. of L. will look on, remain silent or openly approve.

We have stated in these columns from time to time that certain sections of the middle class are more open in their hostility to big capital, as represented by the textile industry, for instance, than are the agents of imperialism in official positions in the ranks of or-

The Milwaukee Journal editorially confirms this opinion of ours in its issue for July 11 when, under the title of "What About It, Mr. Green?" it deals with the Passaic strike, the textile barons, the tariff on textiles and sundry other questions. The Journal says:

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, condemns the leadership of the textile strikers at Passaic. For months, under the direction of the "United Front Committee," these workers have been protesting against wages that were a disgrace even before the textile manufacturers imposed a 10 per cent cut. The manufacturers have raised the cry that they would not deal with the strike organization because the movement is Communistic. And now the executive council of the American federation gives them aid by declaring that because the leaders of the United Front Committee are identified with the Communistic movement in the United States, "it is reasonable to conclude that they are interested in advancing the cause of Communism."

It may be—and the federation officials ought to know—that these leaders are blown-in-the-bottle Communists. But the rank and file of the strikers are interested only in getting decent wages. If in their desperation they have turned to leadership that is tainted with Communism, is that so surprising? About a year ago Mr. Green himself denounced the textile manufacturers of New England. He said that altho government had given them special protection against foreign competition, on the theory that they needed it to pay decent wages, no other industry in the country had made such a record for slashing wages. And Mr. Green threatened that the American Federation would attack the textile tariff in the next congress.

The next congress has come and gone. Where was Mr. Green? Delegations of strikers, ministers and leading citizens from textile towns pleaded with congress to investigate the deplorable conditions in the mills. Where was Mr. Green then, and his threat to attack this tariff under which mill labor and consumers, alike, are exploited? An economist retained by the strikers has accumulated figures on wages, the labor cost in goods, and the profits. They show, he says, that the special privileges granted these manufacturers by government are "entirely obsorbed by the mill owners in indefensible prices and profits."

With wages such that fathers and mothers have to alternate on day and night jobs to live; with conditions so bad that babies have been born at the looms; with Mr. Green forgetting in December what in August he said his organization would do, is it any wonder that these workmen should turn to any available leadership? That it is unsound and dangerous leadership is only the more reason for labor leaders who understand this to give the right kind of help. And if they do not, who more is to be blamed if these textile workers go astray than men to whom labor looks for leadership, men who denounce conditions, as Mr. Green did, but fail to do anything about it? Are we to believe that the leaders of American labor have fallen victims to the fleshpots, too?

As to the statement of The Journal relative to the "unsound and dangerous leadership," of the strike. The strikers do not think the leadership is "unsound and dangerous" or they would not have followed it for six months in a strike which for organization, solidarity and militancy has never been excelled in American labor history.

The rank and file of organized labor does not believe that the strike leadership is "unsound and dangerous" or they would not have contributed to the strike with a wholehearted generosity which sion developed. Progressive delegates governors, senators and congressmen, also makes a bright spot in the not too brilliant history of organized labor of the United States.

That the strike leadership is "dangerous" we are willing to admit. It is dangerous to the textile barons and to their agents in the labor movement.

That is why it has been condemned by the high priests of the American labor movement, the mill owners and the Passaic chamber | prisonment of over forty members of pened in connection with the points | immune from mistakes it definitely the International Ladies' Garment | set forth by him. # The General Council's "4th of August"

By GREGORY ZINOVIEV.

THE more clearly we see the picture of the English strike and the part played in it by the general council, the more clearly we realize that this was the general council's "4th of August." What was the significance of August 4th, 1914 to the majority of the leaders of the Second International? At the critical, decisive moment then so much depended on the general staff of the labor movement, the eneral staff of the Second Internaional, almost in its totality, went over to the camp of the enemy, to the camp of the bourgeoisie. The alliance of the leaders of the working class with the bourgeoisie against the main mass of the working class,-that The great crisis which had arisen dissipated all illusions, phrases, idle talk, show, everything superficial and revealed facts as they are; the leaders of the Second International proved to be agents of the bourgeoisie within the labor movement. Secret things were brought to light. When the imperialist war broke out, the leaders of the social democratic parties and the reformist trade unions revealed themelves as public purveyors of workrs as cannon fodder to both groups of imperialists. It is just at such moments that the leaders of masses of vorkers ought to have done their duty by them. But they "did their duty" by the imperialists and the kings, heir real masters.

Have the reformist leaders changed since then? How would they behave if a fresh imperialist war were to break out? Would they now do their duty towards the workers?

Of course not! We have had some experiences, and hey were not without importance: the attitude of the social democratic leaders to the Russian October revolution, the part played by such shining lights of social democracy as Scheidemann, Ebert and Noske in the all-decisive days of the revolution in Germany (end of 1918, beginning of 1919), the treacherous behaviour of the social democratic leaders during the occupation of the Ruhr, the attitude of the social democratic leaders class false in a fight such as that in miners alone, to isolate them and to

Germany in 1918 and 1919, the British General Strike is the most important event in the history of the working class since the Russian Revolution. Tremendous lessons are to be drawn from the British event -a tremendous enrichment of the understanding of the course of revolution-if a close Marxian-Leninist analysis of this general strike is made. The propaganda work of all Communist sections should to a certain extent center in an explanation to the workers of all countries of exactly what happened in England in the great days from May 1 to

May 12, 1926, and the days immediately before and after. Especially for America is this important. The opportunist American socialist party and the opportunist-sectarian socialist labor partyall "revolutionists" seeking excuses for being counter-revolutionaryhave confused a certain number of honest workers by representing that the course of revolution in "democratic" countries such as England and the United States does not run in the channel of direct revolutionary political struggle against the capitalist state and the establishment of the dictatorship of the proletariat in the form of workers' councils (soviets). Yellow socialism (S. P.) has presented the case of the "British way" as opposed to the "Russian (soviet) way." Yellow-sectarian socialism (S. L. P.) has presented in recent time more and more of an anarchist-pacifist conception of the revolution as a peaceful transformation in which the dictatorship of the proletariat (or any form of workers' state) is "unnecessary" and harmful in such countries as the United States and Great Britain.

The British General Strike serves as the sharpest and clearest possible refutation in visual, concrete form, of the claims of both and all sets of opportunists. A true presentation of the lessons of the British General Strike becomes the foremost task, in the field of propaganda, of the Communist Party.

It is of course to the world organization of the Communist workers that we must look for the true exposition of these lessons. The executive committee of the Communist International has drawn up "Theses on the Lessons of the British General Strike" which meet the require-

The theses of the Communist International on "The Lessons of the British General Strike" will be published in full in the August number of The Workers Monthly, the theoretical organ of the American section of the Communist International, the Workers (Communist) Party. The theses will be made the basis of a discussion of the British General Strike in all units of the Workers (Communist) Party, and they should likewise be used in all workers' forums, clubs,
