WAS FAY MURDERED?

Statement by Young Broker's Friend Arouses Suspicions of Police.

BOSTON, April 15.—New facts brought to light yesterday by friends of Alan Matley Fay, the young stock broker, clubman and Harvard graduate, who was shot and killed Wednesday beneath the window of Miss Josephine Alberts, of 16 Berwick Park, throw doubt on the police suicide theory and indicate that he was murdered.

Arthur L. Wood, a Harvard man, and close friend of Mr. Sewall, of the firm of Fay & Sewall, of which the dead man was a member, is investigating.

The following facts were made public yesterday by Wood: There were two men's hats in the alleyway. One hat, apparently Fay's, was near him.

Another hat was some distance away. Near the second hat was a bottle nearly filled with whiskey.

MINERS EVICTED

In Order to Force Men Back to Work Constables Get Busy.

PITTSBURG, Pa., April 15.—Harwick, a little mining town about twenty miles above Pittsburgh, where 189 miners lost their lives in a mine accident several years ago, has been in a state of excitement for the past few days, caused by the eviction of a number of striking miners' families.

The trouble two weeks ago in which one miner was killed and another seriously wounded when a prisoner was taken from two deputy constables at Harwick was caused, it is alleged, by the Montenegrians, of whom about seventy-five worked in the Harwick mine.

The company, for over a week, has been trying to get the men to go back to work, they having quit three weeks ago on account of an adjustment of wages.

EXISTENCE OF BLACK HAND
Immigration League Says
There is No Such Criminal Organization.

A pamphlet issued by the Liberal Immigration League, entitled "The Truth About the Black Hand," denies the existence of any such organized body of criminals in the United States.

"A day scarcely passes without some mention coming up in the news of the misdoings of the Black Hand Organization. Either it is a 'Black Hand Robbery' or a 'Black Hand Kidnapping' or a 'Black Hand Dynamite Murder'.

"Police Sergeant Petrosino, who had charge of the Italian Bureau at headquarters, up to the time of his death, recently said: 'As far as they can be traced, threatening letters are generally a hoax. Some of them are attempts at blackmail by inexperienced criminals who have the idea suggested to them by reading about the Black Hand in the sensational papers, but the number of threatening letters sent with the deliberate intention of using violence as a last resort to extort money, is ridiculously small.'"

"Dr. G. E. Di Palma Castiglione, in charge of the Labor Information Office for Italians, New York City, and who is in touch every hour of every day in the week with Italian immigrants of all classes, says: 'As an organization the Black Hand is non-existent. Its sole existence is, in fact, confined to a literary phrase. If the name of Cesar was a name to conjure with, so is the phrase 'Black Hand' a phrase to conjure with, for it has so compelling and so terrible a symbolism, that one must almost believe it exists, when one hears the words 'Black Hand' is a myth, in so far as it suggests the existence of a society of criminal Italian immigrants.'"

"Those Italians who have been arrested for being members of the 'Black Hand' organization really are independent malcontents who may happen to be socially intimate. They might frequent the same saloon, or they occasionally might pay a game of cards together, but these meetings are a matter of chance, and are incidental, and not the result of the workings of any criminal organization. In a real grave crime, two or three, or even more of these independent desperadoes might band together, and because each one of them is a member of the 'Black Hand,' but because this (as every detective throughout the United States knows), is a common practice among criminals of all nationalities, Americans as well as Italians."

A Victim of Persecution.
Prominent Italians have often made the complaint that every immigrant of dark complexion, unless he wears a Turkish fez when arrested, is put down in the police blotter as being an Italian, and that by this slipshod method of keeping police records the Italians are made responsible for a variety of crimes committed by other nationalities.

DASHES FROM JAIL

Man, Arrested for Contempt of Court, Tries to Escape.

Liberty looked easy to Harry Rosenburgh, thirty-five years old, of No. 147 Orchard street, as he was about to be placed in the Ludlow Street jail yesterday, but it looked that way only a few minutes. After he had broken away from Deputy Sheriff Terry he was caught in a run of half a block. That short distance, however, caused a lot of excitement in the neighborhood, for Terry drew his revolver and fired a shot in the air! Rosenburgh quickly was overhauled and taken back through a big crowd of excited men and women to the jail.

Rosenburgh was ordered arrested by Judge O'Gorman on contempt of court proceeding. He has a wife, Dora, and two children. He failed to pay $104 alimony, and the warrant was issued and turned over to Deputy Sheriff Terry.

Early yesterday afternoon Terry located his man at No. 27 Greene street, where he was employed in a manufacturing concern. Terry started with him for the Ludlow Street jail, and on the way the man's brother-in-law joined him, and an effort to settle up matters was discussed. The two talked all the way across town to the jail, and were still arguing when Terry took his prisoner up to the door of the jail.

As Terry rang the bell, Rosenburgh jumped to one side and dashed down Ludlow street, turning into Essex Market Place, alongside the Essex Market Court. Although a large man, Terry followed, and when he saw his prisoner running in and out of the crowds, he pulled his revolver and fired a shot into the air. After this he overtook his man, and took him to a cell.

KISS CAUSES MURDER

J. B. White Kills Dentist Who Forced Attention on Woman.

MAREANNA, Fla., April 16.—J. B. White, an influential business man, shot to death Dr. S. B. Alexander because the dentist had kissed his wife while she was reclining in the dentist's chair, and yesterday the Coroner's jury ordered him tried on a charge of premeditated murder.

White is now in jail, being remanded without bail. The shooting was one of the most sensational in the history of the South. The crime was committed Monday night. In the early afternoon Mrs. White returned to her home in an excited frame of mind. Questioned by her husband, she said she had been to Dr. Alexander's dental office and that while she was in the chair the doctor had kissed her. White, wildly enraged, went at once in search of Alexander.

When the case came up before the Coroner the prisoner said that he shot his man in self-defense, but no weapon was found on the body of the dentist.

HIS DEATH A MYSTERY FREE LECTURES TO-NIGHT

Coroner Thinks George Thompson Was Sandbagged—Wasn't Intoxicated.
At the inquest before Coroner Dooley yesterday into the death of George Thompson, 26 years old, a collector, of 310 West 11th street, who died in St. Vincent's Hospital on March 31, Dr. Timothy D. Lehane, of the coroner's office expressed the belief that Thompson died from a blow with a sandbag.

Dr. Lehane said the autopsy disclosed a fracture three inches long and two wide on the top of the skull. There was no laceration or discoloration of the scalp. This condition, he said, is typical of injuries inflicted with a sandbag. Where the injury is caused by the impact of a hard substance there is always a contusion or discoloration.

Thompson was picked up by the police at Bank street and Greenwich avenue at 7:30 o'clock on the morning of March 31. He died without regaining consciousness. The police believed he had fallen while intoxicated. The autopsy showed no traces of alcohol. The Coroner's jury decided that Thompson came to his death in an unknown manner.

Lee-son Dagon Contracting Company from filling in an excavation made five years ago in front of the premises owned by Mrs. Wray, at 312-322 West 38th street. The hole is said to be 250 feet in length and six feet deep, and the contracting company was employed by the city to fill it. The motion made in court yesterday was to allow the city to intervene in the suit against the contracting company, and it was granted.

THREE VICTIMS OF GAS

Woman Makes Thrilling Leap to Reach Their Apartments.

A youth and a woman were found dead, and another woman dying in a lodging house at No. 138 West 25th street yesterday. The boy was George Stratigakin, seventeen years old, who arrived in the United States Wednesday. The dead woman was his cousin, Mrs. Lena Stratigakin. Miss Gladys Asbasia, also a cousin of the youth, is in a critical condition at New York Hospital.

Mrs. Louise Meyers, proprietress of the house, when told that the gas was coming from the room, forced an entrance through the window, after reaching it by a feat that would tax an athlete.

The door of the room was locked. Mrs. Meyers went to a hall window opposite the room, on an airshaft. Standing on the sash, she sprang across the shaft, catching the sill opposite.

Then she swung herself up with a mighty effort, opened the window, and entered.

The party went to the house last night, and paid for the room. With them was Louis Stratigakin, husband of the asphyxiated woman. He went to the hotel at 6th avenue and 25th street.

The police believe that the gas was turned on accidentally. Dr. Monroe, from New York Hospital, found Miss Asbasia barely breathing. The others had apparently been dead some time.

SAVED FROM WRECK

Woman and Man Picked Up by Sound Steamer.

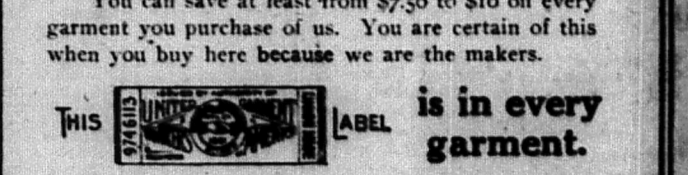

STAMFORD, Conn., April 16.—Knocked about by wind and sea and clinging to a dismantled and upturned sloop, a man and a woman who refused to give their names were rescued yesterday by Captain Augustus Cook, of the steamer Anna E. Coombs, of New Rochelle.

The man was waving his coat to attract the attention of passing craft when Captain Cook's lookout cried that there was a wreck ahead. The captain dove to, lowered a boat, and the man and woman were brought aboard, cold to the marrow and their teeth chattering.

They were profuse in their thanks, but did not enlighten their rescuer as to their identities. Captain Cook gave a hitch to his trousers and told the Stamford ship news staff that he had an idea that the couple he had saved from Davy Jones's locker were indulging in the first summer's romance of 1909.

June 5, 1905, Mrs. DeWolf complained that while in company with her brother, George L. Cavin, in room 211 of the Grand Union Hotel, at 1 o'clock in the morning, "vile and insulting language" was used toward her by an employee of the hotel, who also "accused her of being a disreputable person."

POLICE SHOOT IN CROWD.

Use Guns in Chasing Suspects Along Busy Street.
Scores of women fled panic-stricken to doorways along Newark avenue, Jersey City's shopping district, yesterday, when Police Captain Murphy, chasing two men, fired three shots at them. The shots all went wide, but the fugitives were finally arrested.

At the police station the men said they were James Miller, of 234 Wayne street, and Hugh McSherry, of 77 Broadway, Marion, N. J.

The police captain had his attention drawn to the two men on Henderson street. One of them, he says, was carrying a suspicious looking bundle. When he started after them they took to their heels. He followed, and they darted into a saloon and out a side door and then ran along Newark avenue until they were caught.
