

BOY TESTIFIES AGAINST COP

Murderer on Trial for Killing of Brooklyn Boy.

BROTHER TELLS STRAIGHT STORY Cop Who Grafted on Poor Family for Months Defended by Brother Officers.

Max Prober, eleven years old, proved a strong witness for the people yesterday in the trial for murder of James Dillon, the policeman of the Adams street precinct, Brooklyn, who on May 2 shot and killed the little fellow's brother, Louis Prober, nineteen, at the store of the father, 317 Myrtle avenue. The case is on before Supreme Court Justice Maddox in Brooklyn.

"It is not my place to attack the police," said District Attorney Clarke in opening. "The Police Department and my assistants work hard in hand. But we intend to show in this case as flagrant an instance of abuse of power as ever came to the ears of a jury. We shall show that the defendant was aided and abetted in his crime by his fellow officers; that his associates slashed his coat in order to make it appear that the discharge of the pistol had been the result of a combat with the wounded boy.

"At the time of the shooting Dillon wore his uniform, which was lined with the thickest cotton material. The coat had several long slashes down the back, but the lining, in spite of the lights, was untouched. You may depend upon it that the cuts were made by some one who took care not to injure the man inside the coat."

Little Brother Testifies. Little Max Prober was called as a witness. Dillon, burly and wearing his wavy hair closely cropped, earned his neck forward, exhibiting his first excitement. The boy gave his answers in a clear voice, looking straight at Dillon.

"The policeman, he said, was in the habit of coming to the store several times a week to procure groceries, especially duck eggs, of which he was very fond.

"And how many members are there in your family now?" asked District Attorney Clarke.

"Four," replied the boy; "mama and papa, a younger sister and brother."

"And before the shooting?"

"There was one other then."

"He was"—the boy said very quietly. He then told the story of the shooting.

"Dillon came to the store the night before," he said, "and asked for duck eggs. Only brother Louis and myself were in the store. My brother told Dillon we had no more duck eggs. The policeman started to leave the store. He put his hand on the door. This turned and said: 'I'll fix you for this.' That was the last we saw of him until about the same time, or a little later, the next night. Father was taking in the sign when Dillon came around the corner. The sign had been placed inside the door, and my father was about to lock up when Dillon shoved his foot in the door.

BRIbery CASE ENDS

Cop Charges Cop With Bribery—Decision Reserved.

The decision of Magistrate Gilroy is expected to-day in the case of Bicycle Policeman William G. Frank, of the 175th Precinct, Long Island City, who was arrested two weeks ago charged with holding up an automobile containing several disguised detectives from Police Headquarters and demanding "hush money" to let them go. He was given a hearing before Magistrate Gilroy in the Long Island City Police Court yesterday. The original charges were dropped.

MAY DIE FROM WOUND

Woman Stabbed After Dispute Over Daughter's Graduation Outfit.

Mrs. Mary Casey, forty years old, of 602 West 135th street, is in a critical condition in J. Hood Wright Hospital from a mysterious stab wound in the abdomen, and early to-day Thomas B. Casey, her husband, forty-one years old, a lawyer with offices at 165 Broadway, was arrested as a suspicious person and held at the 125th street police station.

According to the police, Mrs. Casey and her daughter, Edith, thirteen years old, were to go to see Irene, another daughter, fourteen years old, graduated from the parochial school of the Church of the Annunciation, 131st street and Convent avenue, last night.

The parents, it is said, quarreled over the question of what kind of roses Irene should carry. One wanted her to have a bouquet of American Beauties and the other preferred her to wear roses. The dispute became so bitter Mrs. Casey decided to stay at home, and the girls went to the commencement alone.

Shortly after 11 o'clock Casey telephoned to his wife's sister, Mrs. Edith Grady, at 518 143rd street, that she (Mrs. Casey) was ill and asked her to come over. He also went across the street to Dr. Charles F. Baldwin, of 601 West 135th street, and said his wife had been hurt.

Mr. Casey's story is that he went out to get a drink early in the evening. When he returned he lay down on a lounge, and later heard his wife groan in the next room. He found her unconscious on the kitchen floor, wounded in the abdomen. He thought she must have fallen on a knife, but no knife with blood stains on it could be found when the police made a search.

In hope that an operation would save her life, Mrs. Casey was taken to the hospital. Her condition was so serious that the Rev. Dr. Coogan, attached to the Church of the Annunciation, was called to administer the last rites at daylight.

SHOOTs GIRL AND SELF

Jealous Lover Uses Revolver With Fatal Effect—Hope for Victim.

ERIE, Pa., June 22.—Physicians today declare that Beatrice Kelley, aged eighteen, who was shot in the head last night by her sweetheart, Charles Urary, will recover from the wound. The bullet passed through the cheek, but failed to reach a vital spot, and after it was removed to-day the girl was resting easier. Urary is dead, having killed himself when the police arrived.

The shooting occurred at a lodging house where the girl lived. Urary, who is said to be the son of a wealthy Italian undertaker of New York, had quarreled with Beatrice. After he shot her he ran a block and collided with a policeman who had been attracted by the shot. Urary put his revolver to his ear and shot himself dead.

The man had been employed in an undertaking establishment here. He came here a short time ago from Meadville.

Harlem Scene of Riot Early This Morning—Bystander Shot in Leg.

The firing of twenty revolver shots at 126th street and Amsterdam avenue caused terror in that neighborhood early this morning.

The fusillade was begun by two negroes, William Simmons and Edward Ashford, in the hope of settling an ancient grudge, and the only person hurt was Joseph Hughes, aged sixteen years, a spectator, living at 551 West 125th street, who was standing near his doorway and who received a bullet in his leg.

Policeman Shea, in an endeavor to stop the disturbance, fired several shots in the air. This served only to increase the excitement. Hughes was rushed to a hospital and in resisting arrest the negro combatants were badly bruised. They were finally lodged in the 125th street station.

KING LEOPOLD WILL STRIP ROYAL PALACE

BRUSSELS, June 22.—What is deemed confirmation of the report that King Leopold is shortly to remove to Paris for future residence, thereby abdicating the throne, developed today in the arrival from Paris of an expert on art values, who began taking an inventory of every piece of furniture in the royal palace.

This, it is believed, is preparatory to the offering of the palace furniture for sale. The thoroughness with which the inventory is being made, even the knickknacks being included, indicates that the palace will be literally stripped.

LEON'S ROOMMATE CLEARS MYSTERY

Chong Sing Denies Knowledge of Crime, but Tells Incidents of Sigel Case.

The police web is being gathered closer and closer around William Leon and his capture is hourly expected. An important step in the unravelling of the mystery surrounding the murder of the girl who was a granddaughter of Major General Franz Sigel. As the body was found in Leon's bedroom, which opened into the bedroom and general kitchen occupied by Sing, and as both men disappeared about the day the girl left her home, the police are sure that Sing can give important information to lead to the detection of Leon.

Sing made no effort to conceal his identity, but denied emphatically he knew anything about the murder or the whereabouts of Leon. Detective Forbes, sent from Police Headquarters, saw the prisoner in the Amsterdam police station last night and said there was no doubt about the identity of Sing. He will bring the Chinaman to New York to-day and the prisoner will be put through a rigorous examination by Police Inspector McCafferty and Captain Carey. On him the police now rest their greatest hope for the complete solution of the mystery. They had sent out a worldwide alarm for his arrest as material witness.

Left on Day of Murder. Sing said he left New York on June 10. That is the day after that on which Elsie Sigel disappeared. The prisoner, when questioned by the Amsterdam police, said he had not seen Leon for a week before that. He was deeply agitated at the questions put him by the police. He was employed as a cook in a chop suey restaurant in West 89th street, he said, and occupied two rooms with Leon. He insisted he saw Leon only about once in every two weeks. He added he slept often in the restaurant where he worked.

Sing admitted he knew Mrs. Paul Sigel, Elsie and her cousin, Mabel Sigel. He identified pictures of those women, but said he had not visited at the Sigel home for many weeks. Though he insisted he left New York on June 10, he was asked about a newspaper he had in his trunk, dated June 12, and which he said he bought in New York. The prisoner said he had no American wife, but had a wife in China. While willing to talk, he was evasive in many of his answers and appeared greatly worried.

Girl a Flirt. From the information that the police have gained concerning the character of the Sigel girl, whose body was found in a trunk in Leon's room with a clothesline about the neck, they are convinced that she was a flirt. Love letters written by her to both Chu Gain, manager of the Port Arthur restaurant, who is now held by the police as an important witness, and to Leon, show she played with both men.

When Franz Sigel was seen in his home at 1008 Simpson street, the Bronx, last evening, he admitted that a secret funeral was held, but refused to say anything more about it. The reason for the secret funeral was to avoid any throng of curious persons who are sure to gather on such an occasion. The members of the family have been deeply hurt by the publicity thrown on the family affairs, and wished to avoid anything more than a mere mention of the funeral.

HEAT SUFFERING GREAT

Three Dead and Six Prostrated—East Side Passes Night on Streets.

Three people are dead and six prostrated as a result of the terrific heat that hung like a pall on the city last night and early to-day, with the result that the suffering, especially in the crowded East Side tenement districts, was intense. Fully two-thirds of the population in the congested section passed the night trying to sleep on roofs, fire escapes, steps and in the neighboring parks. The suffering among the babies was very great, although no deaths or prostrations of infants were reported. The highest mark registered by the thermometer was 86 degrees, which is within six degrees of the day's record for any previous year, but the forecast to-day promises the weather will be slightly cooler, partly cloudy, showery at night or Wednesday.

Among those who died as the result of heat prostrations was Harding Johnson, a real estate dealer, of 575 Dean street, Brooklyn. He was overcome on 34th street near Broadway, and fell to the sidewalk, fracturing his skull. He died while being conveyed to the Polytechnic Hospital. Abraham Solomon, a retired merchant, of 28 West 120th street, dropped dead from heat on the street near his home and an unidentified man, who had receipts made out to "S. Pacoula," died in Bellevue Hospital of heat prostration. He was about sixty years old, with dark hair and mustache and his right eye was blind.

WOMEN FIGHT FOR JOBS FOR THEIR HUSBANDS

WASHINGTON, Pa., June 22.—Armed with guns, clubs, stones and other weapons, twenty-five infuriated women prevented a gang of thirty imported laborers from beginning work on the proposed new brick highway in Independence Township, this county, yesterday. From 7 A. M. until late to-night the women remained at their posts and not a lick was struck throughout the day. This evening the road supervisors of the township sent for a detachment of the state police and these officers will be on the ground early to-morrow morning to prevent a serious riot, as the worst is looked for.

The wives of the men at the coal works asserted that their husbands had been promised employment on the building of the new highway since a shut down of the mines. And they were there to see promises carried out. They declared the township supervisors had made this agreement when the contract for the roadwork was let.

JURY REFUSES TO REINDICT HEGEMAN

Hegeman was indicted on three charges of perjury and seven charges of forgery in the third degree, following the revelations before the Armstrong Senate Investigating Committee in 1906. All the indictments were based on the year end transactions of the company to which President Hegeman had certified.

DEMANDS ARBITRATION

Governor Marshall Takes a Hand in Indiana Car Strike.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 22.—Governor Marshall has decided to take a hand in the Evansville street car strike and has ordered labor commissioners to go to Evansville and take steps to compel the company to arbitrate with its men. He declared he has information that only President Marshall stands in the way of arbitration; that the other officers favor it and many business concerns in Evansville are on the verge of financial failure if the strike is not settled.

Governor Marshall said: "Surely the great state of Indiana has the power to prevent the financial ruin of the second largest city merely through the arbitrary and selfish action of one man. At least that strike is going to be settled."

PURE FOOD LAW WILL BE ATTACKED

WASHINGTON, June 22.—The constitutionality of the Pure Food law will be attacked in an action to be filed to-morrow in the Supreme Court of the District by a St. Louis concern which preserves eggs. It asks for an injunction prohibiting Secretary Wilson from enforcing the ruling against the use of boric acid, asserting that the Pure Food law is unconstitutional, because it "assumes the police powers of the state, and because it delegates to the Department of Agriculture legislative functions."

The concern in question buys up eggs in the spring and early summer when they are cheap, and after removing the contents of the shell preserves them indefinitely by the addition of a small quantity of the acid.

The product is largely used by bakeries and hotels in cakes, pies and puddings.

District Attorney Fights for Monarch—Opposes Move to Get Witnesses.

DESPOt DIAZ MAY TESTIFY

Author insists That Allegations Made in Book Are Facts That He Can Prove.

The Mexican government is hot on the trail of Carlo de Fornaro, the author of "Diaz, the Czar of Mexico," who told some unpleasant things about the Diaz administration, and strong efforts are being made to-day to have him sent to prison for the exposition. A motion is now before Justice Malone, of Part 5, General Sessions, to allow the defendant four weeks to get the deposition of some witnesses in Mexico bearing on the truth of the allegations made in the book. Assistant District Attorney Appleton is vehemently opposing the motion. A decision will be rendered some time during the day.

The motion was argued yesterday by the Assistant District Attorney, representing the plaintiff, Rafael Reyes Espindola, and by Attorney George Edward Joseph, for Fornaro. Appleton opposed the motion vigorously, stating that a postponement would incur additional expenses to Espindola, who had come from Mexico for the trial.

Attorney Joseph made a strong speech in which he declared that it would be impossible to decide at the trial the true nature of the case, as the witnesses who can help the jury to arrive at a just decision are all in Mexico. He argued his motion on the ground that it is essential to the establishment of truth that, when proven, would justify the publication of the book.

Put It Up to Old Despot. Should Justice Malone grant the motion the trial will take a sensational turn, and may bring some of Diaz's acts and tactics to the front. In the petition for an adjournment the attorney for Fornaro asks to get the testimony of Diaz, the "Czar of Mexico," four members of the House of Representatives, one minister, and about fifty other officials. In fact, the entire Mexican government will be asked to come forward and deny, if possible, the allegations made in the book.

"Under the rule of evidence," argued Joseph, "we have to prove the truth of the allegations, and it is impossible for us to do it with our witnesses absent." The attorney also explained that he only had taken the cause up recently, the lawyer who had at first represented Fornaro, having withdrawn a couple of weeks ago.

Diaz may not come to testify, nor will it be possible to force him to give deposition. But the friends of Fornaro are watching with great interest to see in what manner the "Czar of Mexico" will treat the United States Courts, for which he pretends a profound friendship. Those who know him say that he will not dare to ignore the commission, and may be brought to make some interesting admissions.

Fornaro was arrested on April 8 on charges of criminal libel and was held in $1,000 bail. The complainant, Rafael Reyes Espindola, is a Mexican Congressman and proprietor of El Imparcial, a government daily newspaper published in the City of Mexico. Behind Espindola stands Diaz and his system, and a strong effort is now being made to punish Fornaro. The case, according to Fornaro, is being prepared and worked up by E. Casaus, Mexican Ambassador at Washington, three years ago.

The statements on which the charges are based occur in the chapter of the book entitled "The Press in Mexico." The extract follows:

Espindola Described. The proprietor and editor of El Imparcial, Rafael Reyes Espindola, has done more harm to Mexico than a brood of rattlesnakes let loose on the country. This paper has broken up more homes, spoiled more reputations, attacked, vilified more respectable people than Espindola has hair on his head. The other men have helped him in his heinous work. Luis Urbina, secretary to the minister of instructions, and Carlos Diaz Duffo.

JACKET MAKERS GAIN 34 SHOPS

Bosses Resort to Police Persecution--2 Arrested Here--Cops Busy in Brooklyn.

The Jacket Makers' strike on the East Side is spreading, and more shops are joining the strikers.

The bosses are resorting to police persecution, a beginning having been made yesterday in the cases of Nathan Seigel and Jacob Kaplan, two strikers...

The union will fight the cases and it is confident that it can prove that the two men are innocent of the charge made against them.

A lively propaganda is being carried on for the Poles and Russians in the trade. Last night, at the headquarters of the union, 62 Pitt street, a mass meeting was held for the Russian workmen and speeches were made in that language by Dr. M. Gurevitz and A. Ravitz.

In Brooklyn the strike is even livelier than in New York. Though no disorder occurred the police is taking extraordinary steps to guard the struck shops.

"We do not understand the activity of the police," said Herbert B. Sussman, business agent of the union. "Of course, we are doing our duty and have pickets out. But we do not understand why the police are against us. They seem to be bitter."

"Do they club you?" asked the reporter of The Call. "Well, we do not give them a chance," answered Sussman.

QUEST PROFESSOR FOSTER HEALTH BOARD GETS BUSY

Chicago Baptist Ministers' Conference in Stormy Session.

CHICAGO, June 22.—Much unfavorable comment is being expressed to-day by leading church people here because of the fact that the Baptist Ministers' Conference of Chicago, in special session, dropped Prof. George Burman Foster, of the University of Chicago, from membership yesterday.

This action was taken only after four hours of bitter debate, which at times threatened open violence. The professor had many champions, while the majority charged him with heresy and atheism.

It is said that Foster's friends will rally at the next meeting of the conference and reinstate him. It is believed they hold a majority, but were caught off their guard to-day.

Foster, when seen in the university, seemed amused when informed of the adverse action of the conference. He refused to talk about it, but said he would issue a statement in a day or two.

She said: "I have never before spoken on the question of suffrage for women chiefly because my husband, the Earl of Aberdeen, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, occupies a high position in public affairs, but after hearing what has been said to-night before this audience by women from every part of the world I can no longer keep silent."

MOTHER JONES DENOUNCES DIAZ Gives Reasons for Her Visit to President in Behalf of Mexican Revolutionists.

"Mother" Jones, the veteran labor agitator, now a white-haired woman of seventy-four, passing through New York on her way to a Western tour to raise funds for the defense of the imprisoned Mexican revolutionists, in an interview with a reporter of The Call to-day gave an account of her audience with President Taft last week, and told of the despotism which rules Mexico under the reign of Diaz.

Her interview with Taft was arranged by Immigration Commissioner Powderly. She gave the President documents in the case of Diaz Guerra, who is serving a sentence in Fort Leavenworth for violation of the neutrality laws, including an affidavit by the prisoner stating that he was told to plead guilty by a Secret Service man, Joseph Priest, who acted as an interpreter between Guerra and his lawyer, Mr. Wormesley; says that he did not advise the prisoner to plead guilty, and that his advice was falsely interpreted by the Secret Service man, who told the revolutionist that he could escape extradition only by a plea of guilty.

"Mother" Jones had a previous interview with the President a month ago in regard of a paper of Araujo, the editor of a paper published in Austin, Texas.

She states that the President treated her very courteously on both occasions, and promised to investigate the statements which she made.

"You are always on the side of the fellow underneath," remarked the President to "Mother" Jones. "He's the one who needs it," she replied.

"I'm afraid if you had your way you would pardon everyone and there would be no one left in the prisons."

"If we spent half the money in making people good that we do in maintaining jails, Mr. President, we wouldn't need many prisons," replied the famous leader of the miners.

Mother Jones has already raised $4,000 in the trade unions for the Political Refugee Defense League, which will fight all attempts to extradite or punish Mexican or other revolutionists for political "crimes."

Her next speaking tour will take her to the states near the border of Mexico, in which the agitation is most needed.

Will Raise Fund for Fornaro. She will also raise funds to assist the defense of Carlo de Fornaro in the case brought against him for libel in his book, "Diaz, Czar of Mexico," which has her indorsement.

There are now ten Mexican revolutionists in American jails awaiting trial for extradition or serving sentences for so-called violation of the neutrality laws," said "Mother" Jones to the reporter of The Call, "three in Arizona, four in Fort Leavenworth, and three in Texas."

These men are imprisoned for fighting the worst despotism that exists anywhere outside of Russia. No labor organizations are permitted in Mexico, and anyone who protests against the actions of President Diaz and his gang is shot down or sent to prison.

"Diaz's government is nothing less than a Mafia, and it is now reaching its blood-stained claws into the United States, encouraged and aided by the great capitalists of America who have such large interests in Mexico. The struggle of the Mexican revolutionists is the struggle of the working people against the international ring of millionaire criminals who are exploiting both countries."

"I am interested in the struggle of the Mexicans primarily on account of its effect on American labor. The capitalists of America will go wherever they can get the most profit, and so long as they can get Mexican labor for 50 cents a day in the mines, or have cotton plantations cultivated for 15 and 20 cents a day, they are not going to pay American miners $2.50 a day. They regard themselves as ready to revolt, and the only way for the American workers to meet these conditions is to help the Mexicans raise their wages to the American standard."

"This is what I have been telling the trade unions, for I have no job from the Civic Federation, and no appointment from the Governor, so I don't have to keep my mouth shut."

"The workers of both countries must realize their common interests against the capitalists who are bleeding them both."

"Mexico has recently developed from a semi-feudal country into a full-blown capitalist nation, and it is the extent of American investments in Mexico that explains the attempt to prevent the machinery of American Government to raise their wages and to overthrow the tyranny of Diaz, which is so profitable to American capitalists."

M'FAUL SHOWS HIS SOCIALIST BAITING JERSEY BISHOP DENOUNCES AMERICAN UNIVERSITIES

TRENTON, N. J., June 22.—The Socialists of this city are conducting to-day over the remains of Bishop James A. McFaul to the home of St. Francis Xavier's Church in New York yesterday when he denounced Harvard, Yale and Princeton as places where immorality is taught, and called on all Catholic fathers and mothers to refrain from sending their sons to those institutions. The Socialists say that McFaul has long been known here as a reactionary of the worst type and that yesterday's performance will show him up to the general public.

"If the Catholics who are sending their sons to these universities are of the faculty, immorality and disrespect for womanhood that is being taught in them," said McFaul, "they would tear down the buildings. There are families in this city who are sacrificing their faith and their church taught in their fanatic and lunatic desire to get into society. That's why they send their sons to Harvard, Princeton, Yale; they want to get into it through the associates they meet in these institutions."

"What we want is to send our boys to Catholic schools, where we know that there are such Communists as 'Thou shalt not steal.' They bear false witness against their neighbor. No power but the power of God can stem these evils. We don't want to be hindered by the state, although we do not wish we should have to pay for the sins of a religion that we are sympathetic with. Yet, if ever our country or its principles are in danger, Catholic Church will be in the front line."

PLANS TO CHECK REACTIONARIES

ST. PETERSBURG, June 22.—Premier Stolypin is taking measures to check the plan of the reactionary organization to turn the celebration at Politava next month of the bi-centennial of the famous battle into a demonstration against the Duma and the reform manifesto of October 30. The League of Russian People is planning to hold a general congress at Politava during the celebration, and to send a deputation to the Duma.

SOCIALIST NEWS OF THE DAY

All notices must be in this office by noon of the day previous to publication. All meetings begin at 8 P. M. unless otherwise specified.

To-Night's Meetings

MANHATTAN AND BRONX. Business. 18th A. D. (Bohemian Ladies, Branch 2),—Duba's, 264 East 73d street.

22d A. D. (German),—24 East 54th street. 23d A. D.—250 West 125th street. Lecture by Alexander Rosen, on "Labor Legislation in the Nineteenth Century."

25th and 27th A. D.—112 East 19th street. Open discussion. Women's Special Committee. The first meeting of the Women's Special Committee of Local New York will take place at 219 East 84th street. This committee is composed of delegates from the various assembly districts of Local New York, and was created for the purpose of conducting a special agitation among women; and thus stimulate the efforts which are being at present made to secure more women in the party. Every delegate is urged to attend.

HOBOKEN. Branch 3 will hold a discussion meeting at 94 Hudson street, on "Christian Socialism."

NEW YORK STATE. At the last meeting of the State Executive Committee at 239 East 84th street, New York, F. Paulisch acted as chairman, and in the absence of the secretary, Solomon acted as temporary secretary. Those present at the meeting were Fred Paulisch, U. Solomon, Charles S. Vanderporten, Alb. Pauley, Wm. Krueger and Fred Rennets. Absent with excuse, F. M. Martin and Ben Hanford. Communications were received from the following places: From Frank Midway, of Ohio, agreeing to start on a four weeks' tour through the state, beginning with July 18. The secretary was authorized to proceed with the necessary arrangements for the meetings. From national secretary with a request that each local and branch subscribe for at least one copy of the National Bulletin, so as to enable him to secure the second-class mail privilege. The request was indorsed, and the locals advised to subscribe, as requested. From Binghamton enclosing application for a charter for a local in Endicott, Broome County. The charter was granted and the local will be known as Local Endicott. Communication from Auburn in reference to the recent school elections, also asking for an opinion as to the right of nominating as candidates for the coming municipal election, enrolled Socialists who are not members of the party. After discussing these matters the following resolutions were adopted: "That while the law governing the election of the School Board in Auburn provided that the six candidates receiving the largest number of votes at the primaries, irrespective of party affiliation, are considered as the only candidates for the three members of the School Board, their names appearing on the ballot without any party designation or emblem, it was the duty of the local to submit three names at the primary election, and in the event of their receiving less than the required number of votes to qualify as candidates for the School Board, the local should have refrained from participating in the election. The failure of the local to nominate candidates for the primaries—because they could not poll sufficient votes to qualify as candidates—but indorsing the candidates of the Labor Committee, was not justified, and is disapproved by the State Executive Committee."

"That Local Auburn be advised that in accordance with the state constitution no one who is a member of the party for less than one year could be nominated as a candidate for public office without the consent of the State Committee, and under the circumstances the nomination of enrolled Socialists, who are not members of the party at the same time would be a direct violation of the state constitution."

Communication from Buffalo reporting the formation of a branch in Hamburg, N. Y. The secretary was instructed to communicate with Local Buffalo, and inquire why steps should not be taken to have all the branches at Buffalo, outside of the city of Buffalo, become independent locals, and be in direct communication with the State Committee.

The secretary was authorized to arrange an organizing tour for J. T. Agan, of Elmira, covering the following counties: Chemung, Tioga, Schuyler and Steuben, the tour not to exceed four weeks.

NATIONAL

The following amendments to the National Platform, submitted by Local Des Moines, Iowa, having received the requisite number of seconds, now go to a referendum vote of the membership: "Amend the National Platform by inserting the following paragraph in the principles, immediately following the words 'and have pledged them for collective use and operation': 'There can be no absolute private title to land. All private titles, whether called fee simple or otherwise are and must be subordinate to the public title. The Socialist party strives to prevent land from being used for the purpose of exploitation and speculation. It demands the collective possession, control or management of land to whatever extent may be necessary to the occupation and possession of land by those using it in a useful and non-exploitative manner without exploitation.' The referendum will be open for a period of thirty days."

Meeting of the I. S. B. The following letter has been received from the International Socialist Bureau: "We will soon hold a reunion of the International Socialist Bureau, and as the secretary of the trip is considerable it will probably not be possible for you to send a delegate. We would, therefore, suggest to you that you take the same action as the comrades in Argentine have taken and confide your interest in a member or former member of your party now living in Europe. He could represent you after having received the instructions in due form."

South Carolina Convention. A mass convention of the Socialists of South Carolina will be held at Charleston on July 4. All good-standing members are urged to be present. Further information can be obtained by addressing A. D. Sasser, 85 Tradd street, Charleston, S. C.

"Glas Svoboda." The Cook County (Ill.) Delegate Committee reports that Glas Svoboda, a weekly Slavonic publication, is not a Socialist paper in the sense that other papers of the Socialist party are (although it has, in the past shown an apparent friendship and support to the Socialist party). Its manager and owner, Martin Konda, admits that he is an independent and free thought advocate, and that he is not a member of the Socialist party.

Mexican Political Refugees. The National Executive Committee is now considering three propositions relating to the Mexican political refugees: First, to donate $500; second, to authorize contributions from locals and members; third, to postpone action until the next meeting of the committee. The vote will close June 24.

The Word "Comrade." National Committee motion No. 6, upon which vote closed June 15, and which places the committee's emphatic stamp of disapproval upon the indiscriminate use of the word Comrade in advertisements for commercial and speculative enterprises, was adopted by the following vote: Yes, 50; no, 2; voting, 7.

Berger Elected. The vote by the National Committee for the election of an additional secretary to the International Socialist Bureau closed June 24, and resulted in the election of Victor L. Berger, of Milwaukee.

BOSTON WORKMEN REPUDIATE MICKEL

(Special to The Call.) BOSTON, June 22.—Branch 19 of the Workmen's Circle ("Arbiter Ring") has adopted a resolution in which it repudiates the membership of Boston that it is not responsible for the present or future actions of D. DOINGS IN THE WORLD OF SPORTS

Four American Polo Players Who Will Meet English Cracks for Trophy

EVEN BREAK FOR YANKS Lack of Pinch Hitters Again Lose for Highlanders—Kleinow Injured.

Showing for the last time on their home lot until June 29, the Highlanders, on the Hilltop yesterday, split a double-header with the Senators, just as they did last Saturday. Both games were close and interesting.

In their defeat the Hilltoppers outfit the foe from the District of Columbia by a goodly margin, but while they were successful in getting men on the bases they couldn't get them off, eleven of eighteen athletes who reached the paths languishing on the sacks.

In the first game of the double-header, Walter Johnson, the renowned athlete from Weser, Idaho, was the last of the delivery clerks to be sent out, and he pulled through a winner through the curious way in which the New Yorks passed up opportunities to score.

Washington facing Warhop, scored four runs in the first frame on some lucky hitting and through poor work on New York's part, and won out in the ninth by scoring two runs on three hits, one of the raps being sold and the other two being singles.

Canillon sent Hughes back against the Highlanders in the nightcap part of the bargain bill, and again "Long Tom" failed to go the full route, being sidetracked in the eighth so that Jim Delehanty, who is so lame that he would have to pole a three-bagger in order to reach first, could do a pinch-hitting stunt. "Nick" Atrock got through the eighth without damage.

Hughes pitched every bit as well as Manning, but, like Warhop in the first game, he was handicapped by what was much in evidence in the Senators' poor support. George Browne who win, fumbled two grounders and his fouls cost a couple of runs. One of the best things Hughes did was in the fourth round, when Demmitt, leading it, tripled. Laporte was passed and Blair took two strikes, and then, feeling tired, rested his bat on the ground. Quick as a flash, "Long Tom" shot the ball over and Blair, while he didn't fan, might just as well have done so, as he helped to McBride. Knight whiffed, and when a double steal was tried Hughes and Street broke it up. Tom taking Charley's short throw and passing it to Conroy. "The peg home killed Demmitt.

One more cripple was added to the Highlanders' hospital list in the first game. Jack Kleinow, in catching an outburst of Warhop's, had his thumb smashed and will be out of the game for a week.

LAUNCHING OF LEAGUE TO-NIGHT

To-night is the big night. The delegates of the various teams belonging to the Socialist Baseball League will meet at The Call office to complete the final arrangements and to launch the new association and send it on the way: to the success which it richly deserves. About twenty members will be present so there is no fear that all subjects, no matter how trifling, will be gone into to the bottom.

There are still a number of teams whose entries have not been received. The more teams that the league contains the more fun will be gotten out of the game. Teams must be in mind that the association was organized for the express purpose of having a good time. There are no fees charged and your team need not be made up of a collection of champs. So do not be afraid to send in your entries.

Those teams wishing to join can send their delegates direct to the meeting to-night. Patsy Kline was too strong for Young Guarini in their bout at the Bedford Athletic Club, last night, and in the fifth round of their scheduled ten-round bout he put Guarini down for the count of ten. The bout was a slashing one for four rounds, but Kline took the more chances and landed the cleaner and harder punches.

Patsy's left hand was the stumbling block that Guarini couldn't get over. Kline dashed from his corner in the fifth and before Guarini had a chance to set himself, he received a terrific left to the jaw that set him on his haunches. When he arose, he got another to the stomach, and a third to the jaw. The last punch dropped Guarini for keeps and he was assisted to his corner.

In the semi-final Tommy Owens beat Young Conroy in six rounds.

THROWS HAMMER

Matt McGrath, of the New York Athletic Club, gave an exhibition of throwing the hammer yesterday afternoon at the St. John's College games at Hawthorne Field, and buried the giant weight farther than it ever was thrown before. After two heaves that sent the hammer fairly good distances he steadied himself a bit and made a throw of 178 feet. A few minutes later he took another try and this time his throw measured 179 feet. As there was no competition and no regulation circle the marks will not be recognized.

Just two or three weeks of hard pulling and the worst will be over. Your supporting arm is needed during this change of the Call to a morning paper. With it a good hold can be attained at the start and soon the Call will be able to stand alone and give you its full support and doubly repay the effort you expended on it.

One of the organizations joining the Roll of Honor to-day writes: "This is to certify that the members of Local Union 291 of the U. B. of Brooklyn are up to this day satisfied with The Call and will help to support it by sending you $2 every week until October 1.

Will the organizations on this list please send in their weekly contribution regularly, so time and money expended in sending notice and keeping tab can be used for more immediate needs? There is room for a great many more on the list and we are ready to add them as quickly as they come in. So join the "ROLL OF HONOR."

CUTCH VS. CURLEY

Harry Cutch and Jack Curley will box ten rounds at the Sharkey Club to-morrow night. These boys met a few weeks ago, when Cutch was knocked out by Curley in the fifth round. It was a great surprise for Cutch and he is anxious to have another bout with Curley. In addition to the star bout some excellent preliminaries have been arranged.

EASY ONE FOR NELSON

Battling Nelson should have an easy time disposing of Jack Clifford in their twenty-round bout out West to-night. Clifford was a sparring partner in one of the training camps when Nelson first fought Gans, and went on in one of the preliminaries to that fight.

YANKEE WINS AT TENNIS

LONDON, June 22.—D. F. Rhodes of Boston has won one match in the first round of the lawn tennis championship now being contested at Wimbledon, having beaten E. B. Gurney, 9-7, 6-4, 6-3. Mr. Rhodes is the sole American entry.

CHESS DRAW

The chess match of eight games up between Jose R. Capablanca of Cuba and Frank J. Marshall, the former American champion, yesterday passed the twenty-second game without coming to a close. It was the fourteenth drawn game. The wins still stand 7 to 1 in favor of the Cuban expert. The next game will be played to-morrow at the Manhattan Chess Club, where yesterday's game, of 26 moves, was played.

FITZ STRONG FOR JEFF

Robert Fitzsimmons, former champion heavyweight of the world, returned to New York yesterday on the steamship Minneapolis from Europe, where he gave theatrical exhibitions. Fitzsimmons was at the Langford-Hague fight, in which the Englishman was knocked out by the American negro. The former champion said he hoped the public would have a chance to see Jeffries and Johnson in action. He said that no man could best Jeffries in fighting condition.

CORK MEN'S GAMES

Several champion athletes who will compete at the monster carnival of the New York Press Club Athletic Association in American League Park next Saturday, will strive for prizes on the following day at Union Square on the occasion being the annual program of the Cork Men. A splendid program has been arranged and indications point to the affair being one of the most successful in the history of the organization.

IV GALA CONCERT FESTIVAL CLOSES

Unmixed Choirs of Six Thousand Voices Heard in Lieder of Fatherland.

By HARRY CHAPIN PLUMMER.

Last and most brilliant of the festival concerts comprised in the saengerfest held in Madison Square Garden during the three days past by the Northeastern Saengerbund of America was that which took place yesterday evening before an audience of vast proportions.

The chorales sung by the massed choir were F. Leu's "Im Wald," Luther Kemper's "Schmiedelied," G. Wohlgrueth's "Alteutsches Liebeslied," Hugo Juenget's "Heimliche Liebe" and "Ritter's Abschied," by Johanna Kinkel, while Theodor Prober's "Die drei Gezellen" was of the combined singing and orchestral ensembles.

The orchestra accomplished competent effects in the Liszt poem and suggested, rather than actually rendered, the Entrance of the Gods into Valhalla and Ride of the Walkure, from Wagner's "Das Rheingold." The instrumental accompaniment provided Mr. Beddoe in the Ground excerpt was quite without expression.

THE AGITATORS---A STORY OF THE DAWN

By JOHN R. McMAHON. Author of "TOILERS AND IDLERS" Copyright, 1909, by John R. McMahon. All rights reserved

A letter with a foreign postmark was handed to Rensen as he was starting on an excursion with the Grown-up Class. It came from Sonia, former president of the Ladies' Shirt Waist Union, whom he had not heard of since her mysterious departure after tragic events in the East Side foundry.

"Dear friends, I congratulate you both on your marriage," wrote Sonia in her quick, impulsive little scrawl. "It is perhaps late, but you may need congratulations all the more. Comrades in the East Side have told me about it and about your colony in the wilds. I laughed when I first discovered how easily you fooled me as a bona fide toiler; perhaps I was not fooled, all the same. I am returning from Russia to the land of equality and hope to pay you a visit within a few weeks."

tiles. A three-story dwelling of granite and marble faced the wide sweep of poplar lined roadway within the gates.

"It's a fine house," exclaimed a member of the party. "But why is it so near the road?" "That is the lodge," said Rensen. "A place for the janitor, so to speak. I am glad no one feels critical to-day," he continued, "because really things are in bad shape. A gang of men with scissors are needed to clip the grass from the edge of the paths."

"Do they do that? Say, it beats Central Park!" "There are a number of estates larger and finer than any public park." The party of men and women, scampering children, young men who nudged laughing girls, mothers who forgot their cares, walked through park spaces and in avenues bordered by rare trees and shrubs. The joyous whistle of the purple grackle sounded from evergreens on a knoll. The spring smell was in the cool, sunny air. A glimpse of a soaring bulbous cupola of glass diverted the visitors to the greenhouse at one end of ten acres of flower garden, where regimented rows of roses were wrapped mummy-like in straw and plots of crimson and gold crocus gave a hint of summer splendor. Within the greenhouse the flowers of three zones flourished in artificial climates more perfect than nature's, and with all natural enemies eliminated.

cars. Above the stables were apartments for grooms and chauffeurs.

"Some of you boys laughed at me," exclaimed the cheery-voiced Limpy Jack, "when I was still menders tools in the old shop and I told you what a fine boss stable the superintendent let me rest up in after my foot was burnt off. It was just like this. You laughed at me."

The English style mansion with white marble pillars and a body of granite and limestone stood on the highest point of a plateau which fell steeply to northern lowlands and gave a magnificent view of a lake and the distant hill range. Sculptured stone benches, dug up in the Island of Cyprus, and two ancient racing pillars of red granite were disposed about the lawn, where grew a frosty-needed spruce, a bronze leaved poplar and strange, beautiful shrubs. Sated by what they had seen, many of the visitors did not listen to Rensen's conscientious descriptions of a house with forty rooms for guests and servants. The children were content to roll on velvet carpets and play games on Persian rugs. The mahogany and gold chairs of the dining room excited comment for their weight. The drawing room, with its astonishing ceiling frescoes of cupids and nude women, aglitter with cut glass chandeliers, the walls covered with old French tapestry, a few large paintings by Spanish and Dutch masters, fragile furniture of pictured blue brocade and twisted gilt shapes, revived drooping interest and gave many spectators a new emotion.

THE CAUSE OF HARD TIMES.
The working class of the United States cannot expect any remedy for its wrongs from the present ruling class or from the dominant parties. So long as a small number of individuals are permitted to control the sources of the nation's wealth for their private profit to competition with each other and for the exploitation of their fellow men, industrial depressions are bound to occur at certain intervals.—From the Socialist Platform.

THE WORLD-WIDE TRUST.

One more step has been taken—and that a big one—toward the international consolidation of the capitalist system, which must necessarily carry with it, as an ultimate result, the international consolidation of the labor movement.
So far as the Western Hemisphere is concerned, the Standard Oil Company has long enjoyed a practical monopoly of the production of petroleum and all its numerous and important products and by-products. For years it has been gradually extending its operations across the oceans to Europe and to Asia and Australia.
At one time it was threatened with Russian competition. But this danger was soon ended by the trustification of the Russian companies and the conclusion of an agreement by which the American and the Russian trust divided the world market between them on terms advantageous to both, but especially advantageous to the Rockefeller combine, which, being the stronger at the start, was able to demand the lion's share in the bargain.
The only hope of rival refiners was in the product of the extensive oil fields of Galicia. Austrian and German manufacturers drew from the Galician wells a supply of petroleum which enabled them to keep up at least a limited competition with the two great monopolies.
And now comes the news that the Standard Oil Company has taken advantage of the Galician oil-owners' lack of capital to develop and control their wells and has driven a hard bargain with them, by which it is assured of the control of half the Galician product and gets a heavy toll upon the remainder—a toll which is very likely to make it impossible for the Galicians to continue in the game at all.
The Standard Oil Company is of course only one of the American industrial trusts which have already attained international proportions. The Consolidated Tobacco Company is an equally striking example, and there are many others.
At the same time American capitalists are continually investing a part of their surplus in the stocks and bonds of European corporations or in South American, African, and Asiatic concessions which they hold jointly with the financiers of England, France, Germany, and Belgium. British and Continental capitalists, in turn, are constantly investing a part of their surplus in the securities of American companies. The Statist, for instance, estimates the British holdings of American railway securities alone at no less than three billions of dollars.
The time is rapidly passing when the labor question could rightly be considered as an issue between the workmen of any particular country and the capitalists of the same country. To a very great extent, and to an ever increasing extent, it is true that the surplus value extracted from the underpaid labor of the working class of the United States is divided among the capitalists of the whole civilized world and that, on the other hand, the unearned incomes of the American capitalists are drawn from the exploitation of the working class of every nation under the sun.
The time is past when workmen should suffer themselves to be puffed up with national vanity or inflamed with national animosities. The workmen of the world are brothers, whether they wish it or not—brothers in the similarity of their conditions, brothers in common exploitation, brothers in common need.

MR. TAFT'S HISTORIC MISSION.

What is whisky, anyhow?
The average man in front of the bar doesn't know, though he has a more or less accurate idea of what it ought to taste like.
The man behind the bar may know, but he won't tell.
The manufacturers are disagreed. They know the components of the various seductive and exhilarating concoctions that commonly go under that one generic name. But when it comes to giving a plain and strict definition of the word "whisky"—a definition that will serve all purposes under the internal revenue law and the pure food legislation—then each manufacturer has his ideas, but there is no consensus of opinion.
The Secretary of the Treasury, the Secretary of Agriculture, and the Secretary of Commerce and Labor, together with their various expert chemists and solicitors learned in the law, have wrestled with the momentous problem, because they run up against that definition question in the course of their official duties and it bothers them. But, learned as they are and hedged about and propped up by official dignity, they haven't yet been able to work out a definition that the manufacturers will stand for.
The manufacturers are practical men. And now they have shown their practicality by agreeing to leave all their differences to arbitration and to put it up to one whose authority on such a subject none will dare to impugn.
President Taft is to be asked to settle, for good and all, the burning question of the day. What is whisky?
Now we know what the Fates had in mind when they engineered that astonishing performance of theirs in hoisting the Adipose Intentioner into the Presidential chair. He is the Man of the Hour. He is the Right Man in the Right Place. Not Andrew Carnegie himself, we venture to say, could be better fitted to beard the Red-Eye Sphinx in its den and set a doubting world at rest by telling it what it ought to get when it asks for whisky.
The Mikado has decorated Henry Clews, the New York banker and solver of all social problems, with the regalia of the Order of the Rising Sun. We would suggest that if Mr. Clews tries a few more debates with Socialists he might get the Order of the Fallen Star.

THE SHOW WINDOW AT WORK.
By Ernest Poole.

(Concluded from yesterday.)
In this same store I watched one of these family parties—an anxious man, a shawl-robed wife and the excited little youngsters—being led from room to room and from floor to floor—buying clothes and shoes and hat and strange new American kitchen utensils. They were a solemn group—all but a chubby five-year-old, who was plainly delighted with all these American things, darting toward them, grabbing at them, crawling beneath them—and finally in a perfect frenzy of joy, rushing off down a dark aisle, to be dragged back still gurgling—eyes all asparkle with jocular humor. While the mother, a neat, thrifty-looking woman, stood listening to the clerk's explanation of how to use certain kitchen utensils, her face intent and anxious, only now and then her hand rising unconsciously to push that strange new American hat straight on her head.
Here is often a struggle for the wife, between the hat and the cooking utensils, between clothes for herself and solid comfort for her family. For the wages, that seemed so magnificent when heard of in Europe, prove to be scanty indeed to meet the American prices and all the new, undreamed of fast crowding desires.
Hard indeed to keep the balance. And honor to her who succeeds. On the one hand, the teeming home doubly comfortable and bare, the food doubly wretched and poorly cooked, blankets lacking, children crying, the whole home cheerless and slovenly, because the pretty young wife has left the balance lean to the side of her personal adornment. On the other (and this is the common case) the wife spending not a cent on herself, spending all on the home and the children. And here the result is often tragic.
In New York I lived for two years with a probation officer whose work was with petty offenders whom the judge had given another chance, letting them out on probation under this officer's surveillance. Next to drunkenness, the most common offense was wife desertion. Among the immigrants one story was so often repeated as to attain deep social significance.
The man comes to America alone. He works hard for some years to make ready for his family. He is faithful, he writes letters home, sends part of his wages each month, and dreams of the happy time of reunion. But mean while the city crowds in upon him with its new standards of dress and manners and living. In the streets he sees always the shop girls in their trim American clothes. Unconsciously the mental picture of his wife becomes changed. She becomes—in his fond imagination—trimmer and smarter—Americanized. But when at last the family arrives, this picture is broken, his immigrant wife is before him—not trim and smart, but a peasant.
At once he begins trying to transform her. But wages are scanty and when the good wife refuses to be changed and insists on spending all on solid comfort for herself, his children, then often there comes a breach—and a tragedy.
Here is a story of a woman as shrewd as she was brave and unselfish. She was a Pole and arrived with three children. Her husband was a tailor, who made on an average nine dollars a week. He tried to make her buy the new clothes, but the cautious wife made him leave the store and come home. And together, sweating after evening, they slowly figured up wages and expenses.
Meanwhile other wants were crowding in, and little by little, with the help of a kind neighbor across the hall, she was purchasing household utensils. The man was delighted with the transformation of his two tenement rooms, and all went well for some months.
Then the breach began. It widened. Spring had come! In the streets the shop girls were radiant in cheap new hats and skirts and jackets. Some of them were the sweethearts of younger Poles in the sweatshops where the husband worked. Again he urged his wife to "fix herself up." She refused. And he sulked—and began staying out in the sweaters indeed.
Dark rumors reached her. Things began to look desperate indeed.
Then the wife had long secret talks with the kindly neighbors across the hall—a young woman whose husband's wages were high enough to include both clothes and comfort.
The wife's face grew anxious, excited—at times she would chuckle to herself—and then again grow silent.
Her husband's birthday came. She begged him to be home that evening. And he gave an ungracious assent.
At 6 o'clock he came gloomily home from the sweatshop.
He threw open the door—and drew back.
Where now was the clumsy immigrant woman?
She stood there smiling at him—unsteadily, but bravely keeping down her fears. The children clung around her—around her soft red American dress. And her hair was done in a different way, and she wore a red flower in it!
And when he laughed awkwardly and sprang forward, her flushed face grew suddenly joyous, and sank with such relief on his shoulder that—
What a happy evening it was.
She would tell him nothing. After the merry birthday supper, the children were all put to bed, and husband and wife went out for a long quiet walk, and sat on a bench in a tiny park that looked into the moonlit river.
And that night it was as it had been five years ago in Poland.
But in the morning she was dressed as before.
"No," she said sternly. "If you want to see me dressed so again, you must work harder and earn more wages. We have not now enough for clothes and all the rest."
"But," asked the astonished husband, "where did you get your clothes last night?"
"Borrowed," she quietly answered. "That woman across the hall—she is a fine woman. Now go off to your work."
LABOR CONDITIONS IN MONTANA.
The supply of labor in the Montana coal fields during the year 1904 was more abundant than in either 1903 or 1907, the depression in the metal-mining industry having caused miners to seek employment in the coal regions. The number of men employed increased from 2,755 in 1907 to 3,145 in 1908, and the average working time decreased from 255 days in 1907 to 224 days in 1908. Most of the mines of the state were operated only eight hours a day, 1,902 men out of a total of 3,145 working eight hours.
The industry was not materially affected by strikes or other labor disturbances during the year. Strikes occurred at eight mines, the periods of idleness ranging from 5 to 24 days. The total number of men affected by these strikes was 556, and the average time lost by all of these was 17 days.

AS OTHERS SEE US.
By Robert Hunter.

A century later we shall be living in a Socialist civilization. It will be interesting then to read the Outlook of 1909 and other present day publications to find out what the people of this day thought of Socialists.
That will be as interesting to Socialists then as it is interesting now to read what prominent Romans thought of the early Christians.
When Nero was burned, you remember, Nero feared that he would be accused of the act, and in order, if possible, to remove the imputation, he determined, Tacitus says, to transfer the guilt to others.
"For this purpose he punished, with exquisite torture, a race of men detested for their evil practices by vulgar appellation commonly called Christians."
The name was derived from Christ, who in the reign of Tiberius suffered under Pontius Pilate, the procurator of Judea. By that event, the sect, of which he was the founder, received a blow, which, for a time, checked the growth of a dangerous superstition; but it revived soon after and spread with recruited vigor, not only in Judea, the soil that gave it birth, but even in the city of Rome, the common sink into which everything infamous and abominable flows like a torrent from all quarters of the world.
"Nero proceeded with his usual atrocity. He found a set of prodigate and abandoned wretches, who were induced to confess themselves guilty, and on the evidence of such men, a number of Christians were convicted, not, indeed, upon clear evidence of their having set the city on fire, but rather on their sullen hatred of the whole human race.
"They were put to death with exquisite cruelty, and to their suffering Nero added mockery and derision. Some were covered with the skins of wild beasts, and left to be devoured by dogs; others were nailed to the cross; numbers were burned alive; and many, covered over with inflammable matter, were lighted up, when the day declined, to serve as torches during the night.
"For the convenience of seeing this tragic spectacle, the Emperor lent his own gardens, and assisted in person, sometimes driving a carriage, and occasionally mixing with the rabble in his coachman's dress. At length the cruelty of these proceedings shined every breast with compassion. Humanity revolted in favor of the Christians. The manners of that people were, no doubt, of a pernicious tendency, and their crimes called for the hand of justice, but it was evident that they fell a sacrifice, not for the public good, but to glut the rage and cruelty of one man only."

ENLIGHTENMENT
By BOLTON HALL.

Of course they can't see, and Hound, "when they keep their eyes shut; those puppies have just as many eyes as I have, it is only their own fault."
"But—" said their Mother, member—
"Remember! It is not punishing the Hound. They don't even try to open their eyes. I am not punishing puppies."
"They are so young," said Mother, "if—"
"Young! they are bad from all dogs are bad. Every puppy uses 'dog' as a word of contempt."
"If you would have patience with the Mother, you—"
"I am out of patience with those lower puppy class, they lay, shiftless, unresponsive, they fail to us for governing themselves, not go to the country."
Just then the puppies opened their eyes—but even then they could see. But that was no matter. Hound's mind was made up.

THE "HOBO."
The Western Wage-Burner.

Some fifty years ago there was a "hobo" in America. Now there are fifty thousand. Now there are fifty thousand men who would beg or steal a living from the ranks of the wage earners.
I am not including the rich and the poor, but just the plain, honest "hobo," who comes begging out at the back door, year after year. As the unemployed question grows more acute, as the competition increases, hundreds are added to the ranks of this vast army.
And what is going to be done with it? Some people say that they are lay off of worthless men, who do not work if given an opportunity.
I admit that a great many of these are of this stamp, but the question is, what made them "hobos"? There must be some cause for these men talking to this rambling life, filled with many hardships and dangers. It is because they were given an opportunity to earn a living, because they were forced to certain unemployment, which is not only meant starvation wages, but these men are not a worthless class, day is coming when these men's fortunes are going to rise, and reckoned with, and that day is soon; when they are going to stand with their own class, and are comrades. Don't judge them hard; for next year, next month, perhaps to-morrow, you may be a "hobo."

ACCOMPLISHMENTS.
OSLER ON CONSUMPTION.

My father's "such a brilliant man," heard some people say. They stayed and talked to Father a stupid sort of way. They used the queerest kind of words—and Father said that, if Father talked so every day, I don't know what I'd do!
But when there are no "brilliant" my father's "brilliant" that Down underneath the sofa in the he calls his "den."
And he acts any animal that ever lived—yes, sir!
I've seen my father be some things that really never were!
He's funniest as "Kangaroo" or "serpent" as "the bear."
It makes me really shiver when he "drags me to his hair."
His "Tiger's" really wonderful, and are all the rest.
But, after all, I do believe his "Lion" is the best.
My father is a brilliant man—I'm sure that's very true; But not when he talks with "politicians." I don't see how he knew.
And if they think he's brilliant, he seems to be a hero. I wonder what they'd think of him, they could hear him read!

WHAT LABOR EDITORS SAY ABOUT THE EVENING CALL.

WESTERN FEDERATION OF MINERS.
Denver, Col., June 8, 1908.
Editor of The Call:
I have noticed that The New York Evening Call, like other publications espousing the cause of the down-trodden and oppressed, is riding a rough sea, so far as financial support is concerned. I look upon The New York Evening Call as one of the ablest champions of the rights of the working class in America, and it would surely be a calamity if the laboring people would fail to rally to its support, and there should again be recorded the demise of one of the dailies that flies the flag of justice.
The working people of America should realize that without publications to meet the slanders and the calumnies of the capitalist press, there is but little hope of the great mass of the people moving onward toward the goal of industrial liberty.
Yours fraternally,
JOHN M. O'NEILL,
Editor, Miners Magazine.
