You have had (some of you) a haif and two full holidays in a row-e they too much for you? Did you go broke? The Can creditor did not ke a holiday. Y-o-u-r One Day's Wage for The Call must not be ove ked, reader. Again, I have a letter from A WORKING GIRL. F'r he f she sends another Day's Wage ($1 for 10½ hours' work), and al ds in $1 she collected from a girl who works with her. A WORKING RL has sent $4 to the One Day's Wage Fund—$2 given by herself and $2 m others. She knows the need of The Call. If it had not been for the ee of men and women ike her in times past, reader, y-o-u would be ding for $1 a day on less. There is the letter of the Organizer of the ed Hebrew Trades. He knows the value of The Call. Really, my her Union Men, you ought to be first on The Call list. And you ought to guit with One Day's Wage—you who know the value of The Call, there is a letter below from Harry Queich, the editor of London (Eng.

Also, there is a letter below from Harry Queich, the editor of London (England) Justice. He is a veteran in the English labor movement, and he moust the value of the Labor Press.

Reader, do not delay. Send a small sum if you cannot send a large one. Address The Call, 442 Pearl St., New York. Circulation? Do you take pains to get your friends to read The Call.

Tomorrow I shall publish a letter from A WAITER. It is the most interesting letter that has so fa rheen sent to me. Be sure and call your salter's attention to it if you dine in a restaurant or hotel. He will thank you for it. Heve you asked any one to give to the Wage Fund? Do you now that there is many a man and woman who would be benefited, and would live to bless you if they were to become interested in Socialism by only effort? If you know of any one who is living a useless, empty life effort? If you know of any one who is living a uscless, empty life—them a vision of Socialism.

THE KINDNESS OF THE CAPITALIST PRESS IS MORE DANGEROUS THAN HOSTILITY

To The Call: I gladly send you a word of good cheer. I am only sorry To The Call: I gladly send you a word of good cheer. I am only sorry that I cannot accompany it with a more substantial expression of sympathy and comradeship, in the shape of current coin. Unfortunately, however, we are just as badly in need of that commodity on this side of the pond as you possibly can be. You are doing a great work, and one of which you may well be proud, in striving to maintain a daily paper like THE CALL. You beat us here. We have been struggling for a long time to plate a weekly Social Democratic paper on a sound footing, and can hardly'claim to bave succeeded yet. It is a hard up-hill fight, all the harder by reason of the professed symmathy of the organs of the cardialist research. son of the professed sympathy of the organs of the capitalist press he working class. Their kindness is much more dangerous than lostility. Fortunately we of the S. D. P. have never had any of the eir hostility. Fortunately we of the s. D. P. have never had any of the rmer, and plenty of the latter. That, however, does not prevent the hypo-tical sympathy of the capitalist class and their press imposing on the orking class and making our work all the harder. However, we shall win rough. Good luck to you in the fight. Yours for the Revolution.

I AM SURE THAT THE TRADE UNIONS CANNOT GET ALONG WITHOUT THE CALL!

To The Call: I send $4 to the One Day's Wage Fund of The Call.

I' do not see why Trade Unionists, especially those of the East Side, oklyn and Brownsville, do not take action on this appeal of The Call One Day's Wages to put the paper on a self-supporting basis. I am a that the Trade Unionists cannot get along without The Call. It fights age that the Trade Unionists cannot get along without me Call. It gains all their battles. The bosses have learned to hate it like poison. What the boss hatos is often what we need. What the boss would kill is often what we ought to help. The Call is OUR paper, OUR voice, and every worker ought to give it a Day's Wages to make OUR paper sure of life. Here's mine, and I expect to see many of my fellow-unionists on the list soon, mine, and I expect to see many of my fellow-unionists on the list soon.

his application to be accepted, another week "breaking in" without pay, and several more weeks as an "extra man," during which he receives no pay, except for the time actually spent on cars, the Metropolitan Street Railway conductor is given a regular "run."

This confers on him the privilege more hours a day, with lots of time lost in between, for a wage of 21% cents an hour. This is the wage of onductors during the first year. It is increased a cent an hour each year until the maximum of 24½ cents is reached. Motormen are started at 22½ cents an hour, after spending from three to five weeks "breaking in" without pay, and are gradually increased to 26½ cents an hour, the sum which they receive after four years of service.

ROBS EMPLOYES Famous French Aviator Meets Horrible
Fate in Wright Machine.

PARIS. Sept. 7 .- M. Lefebre, who distinguished himself by his manipulation of a Wright biplane at the Rheims aviation meeting, met death this evening at Juvisy when testing a new Wright machine on behalf of the Aerial Company. The wind was very light, not eight miles an hour. Before starting the machine was minute:y examined and everything was tested. For two minutes it flew at a height of about ten yards, when to the horror of the few present it was seen to dive toward the ground at the rate of possibly fifty miles an hour. When it struck the earth its front part dug deeply into the ground. Lefebre was found among the debris on his back, his feet against the motor and his head under a mass of broke wood. He was unconscious. He was transported to the hospital connected with the Juvisy aerodrome, but he died soon afterward.

Lefebre was twenty-nine years old. He had an engineer's diploma from Lille. He taught himself to fly the Wright machine in Holland. He was fourth in the speed race at Rheims fourth in the race for the international and second in the passenger race for giving an exhibition of fancy fly ing in front of the grand stand, which the committee considered endangered the other competitors.

Announcement

"Women's Sphere" earnestly invites contributions from all readers and sympathizers. These may consist of stories, poems, or articles and items of general information and interest, and should be sent to Mrs. Anita C. Block, 746 St. Nicholas avenue, New York iCty.

THE "MOTHERING"

Women police is the latest panacea for the attainment of ideal civic conditions. The idea emanates, of course, from the fa-cile, not to say erratic, brain of a woman reformer. Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, president of the Na-tional Woman's Suffrage Association, informed the students of the University of Minnesota the other day that all Minneapolis needs to become a model city is 100 women on its police force. "One hundred women specialists put on the police force of a city would make for improvement in civic conditions. The criminal needs moth-ering." So says Dr. Shaw. Oh, pshaw! It will doubtless strike the ordinary observer that what the average criminal needs most is fathering-administered with a strong hand. The criminal has States and municipalities seam. vie with each other in coddling Large sums are spent make his cell a coudoir and to save the poor convict from feeling the shame of his condition. Free entertainments are provided at the taxpayers expense. Saturday half holidays are the vogue in penitentiaries. In all probability the word penitentiary will be dis-carded ere long, lest it hurt the feelings of the thieves, forgers. perjurers and murderers who are confined in such places.—Kansas

City Journal. One could search far before finding anything more medieval in spirit, more barbarous in frank brutality than the above article. It shows perfectly what the attitude of a very large percentage of the population is toward that tragic by-product of our civilization, the criminal. These peowhat the great scientific authorities on crime all tell us-namely, that crime is a disease brought on in almost all cases, like tuberculosis, by the vic-conditions for a human being to de-velop in. Feed a child's stomach on slum-food and it becomes the physical type of our slums, pale, undersized ematiated, not normal; feed a child al: feed a child's mind on slum-morals and it become our criminal type, brutal, vicious, indifferent, not normal. For the actions of the mind are as much due to physical causes as the actions of the stomach. Crush in a child's skull so that the bone will press on a certain part of the brain and one of any num-ber of mental defects may result. A human being becomes a criminal be-cause through some condition he has been made not normal, i. e., diseased, since the normal type of humanity is not the criminal type. And since it is, or at least should be, under a decent ties of society, adequately to care for its diseased members, the sooner out face of the earth the better. rather a "boudoir" with a woman skillfully trained for her work, ad-ministering medical and physical treatment to her criminal patient, than the "cell" which today vies with the slum as the breeding ground of crimi-

But a society that permits the slaughter of its children, the debilitation and prostitution of its women expected to have a human titude toward its criminals.

THE RIGHT TO DANCE

No. Yetta Weinberg did not look to be fifteen years old. Justice Mayo admitted that when he surveyed the fragile, sickly little creature in the New York Children's Court. She was such a tiny youngster-a mere pocket edition of a child, sobbing like a baby And yet the child had produced the necessary document to establish her right to dance around while the orground at Rivington and Suffolk streets.

Joseph R. Helms, principal of the playground, had Yetta brought to court. She had broken one of the ironclad rules of the playground which in simple language reads this way:

"Girls under fifteen years of age must sit quietly on the benches the orchestra plays. Those who are more than fifteen may dance."

"I have had a lot of trouble with this little girl," said Principal Helms. "Night after night she has insisted on dancing with the older girls. I was convinced she was not fifteen years

Mr. Helms told how Yetta insisted

The state of mind is: Discontent with the tactic adopted and carried on during the last few years by the I. L. P. leaders toward the Labor party. Here we reach a much discussed topic, which was a much discussed topic, which was also raised in the Neue Zeit a short time ago. How should a Socialist party behave toward a Labor we all indeed know that Socialism can only succeed as a labor movement, that Socialists do not constitute a special organization opposed to the other labor parties, and that the So-cialist idea and the organized prole when the wine is not yet ferment-Like all Socialists of this type— the type is a historical one, dat-go together, like—to use the striking expression of Comrade Kautsky-the connection between the final goal and the movement. In all continental countries we have acted upon these list, he has a great horror of principles, but not in England, where their application met with a hindrance in the form of the peculiar historic facts. For while in other countries it was the Socialists themselves who for the first time organized and mobilized ament, and is caused by the the hitherto chaotic, or, to be quite correct, amorphous mass, the proletbeen organized and actively gaged in the political struggle for decades before the modern Socialists appeared in the his-toric arena. Therefore Socialism on the continent was never for a moment separate from the general labor move ment, but stood, on the contrary, it its midst as its central force, while in England it rose as something dif-ferent—even something opposed. What were the English Marxists to do unde these circumstances? Should they merge themselves in the Labor party? But these was no such thing at the y, and having candidates of bourgeois parties opposed to was elected and came into political action did not at that time ament, the first representative of workers to get in on a Socialist it; thus proving that the hushingconstitute a special party, but only provided from among their ranks members and candidates for the Liberal party. All, then, that the Socialists could do was to seek to win over cy of the National Council of Treat joy in the S. D. PARTY MACHINES.

Judge Gaynor's published letter, in which he announces himself a candidate for Mayor of any and all parties that may choose to nominate him, proves conclusively that as a public man he is altogether behind the times.

His fundamental proposition is that "extreme" partisanship in city or local elections is most unfortunate, the main result of such partisanship being "to play everything year after year into the hands of party machines."

Again, toward the conclusion of his letter he repeats the same proposition in another form. "No party or party machine," he says, "can drag us down if we stand fast together; on the contrary, we may lift city politics up in all parties, and make the spoliation of the city's treasury through mere machine political control a thing impossible in the future."

And what is the remedy for "mere machine political control" of the city? Here is Justice Gaynor's remedy: "I shall not take a nomination from any organization to which is annexed any pledge, romise or condition whatsoever, other than to be Mayor in fact and do my duty if elected." In other words: PERSONAL RULE.

The city cannot be trusted to the combinations of individuals called political parties. But it can and should be trusted to a single individual responsible to no party, to no association of men, on his mere promise that he will be "Mayor in fact" and do his duty.

The immeasurable silliness of the conclusion arrived at by this thining light of middle class radicalism is quite worthy of his absurd and ridiculous premises.

Party machines, as they exist in this country, are undoubtedly great evil. There is no counterpart to them in any country of Europe. This, however, is not due to any defect in the American character. It is due to the peculiar political and economic conditions in this country. On the one hand, formal democracy is more fully developed here than in any other great country. The number of public officials directly to be elected by the people at every annual lection places a great part of the real political power in the hands of the people. On the other hand, the powers of the capitalists are sowhere so vast and practically uncontested as they are here, while shere is at the same time an unequaled amount of unappropriated public wealth to be seized. The latter statement applies not only o the economically still undeveloped Western states, but also to every one of our fast-growing centers of population.

Under these conditions it is clear that the seizure of the public wealth by the capitalist class could not have proceeded without fooling and corrupting the electorate. The political machines have served this purpose. Controlled in every instance by bands of capitalist looters, the political machines corrupted the masses of the voters through the bestowal of paltry favors and fooled them into the belief that they-the voters-were still the fountain head of all political power, while as a matter of fact this power was being exercised by the bands of brigands through their tools—the elected of the people.

Hence if any one wishes to strike at the political machine he can do so in only one of two ways. He must either aim at the overthrow of popular government, so that the looters may divide among themselves the public wealth without having to resort to the degrading practices of political corruption, or he must strive to overthrow the power of the capitalist class and the establishment of a

The former method-that of depriving the electorate of its wer-has been adopted by the capitalists in various states of the Union, and with signal success. In the South almost the entire working class, white as well as black, has been disfranchised. In other s the length of the terms for which public officials are elected has been extended. In this way these officials have been removed ther from popular control. The constitutional amendments to be voted on this month in New Jersey are intended for this purpose. The increase of the number of appointive officials and the difficulties it in the way of nominations by small parties have the same end wiew, that of thwarting the expression of the will of the people ugh their votes.

This insidious confining of political action by the people within sarrower limits has been effected by means of both the Republican d Democratic parties, the only party that has been consistently hting this trend toward political oligarchy being the Socialist

But Judge Gaynor seems to know nothing of the actual, objective causes that have given rise to our corrupt political machines. He seems to regard them as creations of the devil, which can only be fought by pushing to the front just and honest men. And as he is perfectly convinced of his just and honest intentions he wants to have himself elected Mayor of this great city "without any pledge, promise or condition whatsoever."

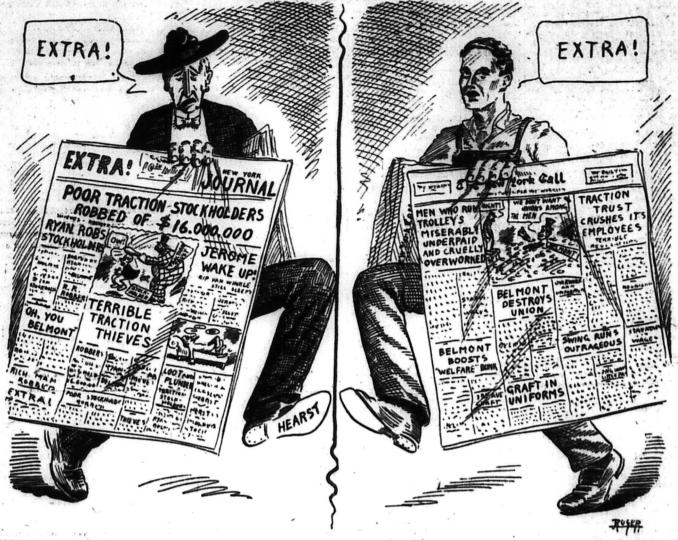

Does Mr. Gaynor think the people of this city are such fools as to intrust their fortunes to any man, whoever he be, blindly and

Does Mr. Gaynor think so little of democracy, has he such contempt for the people, that he believes they can be persuaded into ecting him their monarch for the next four years "without any pledge, promise or condition whatsoever?"

Does Mr. Gaynor think that mere formal honesty is going to satisfy the people? Does he, for example, believe that if our public franchises were to be given away honestly, without the intermediary of political corruption, the people of this city would like it better than if they were given away in the old way, through the political

Does not Mr. Gaynor know that the great working class of this ity has the most serious grievances against this city's government, d that the awakened and enlightened section of this class is resolved upon demanding the most stringent, binding and unequivocal "pledges, promises and conditions" from any candidate for Mayor pealing for its suffrages?

HOW THE CHAMPIONS OF THE MIDDLE CLASS AND THE WORKING CLASS HANDLE THE TRACTION QUESTION.

The Convention at Saratoga.

By Robert Hunter.

There assembles today at Saratoga collection of appetites. They are those of the itching palm.

The Democratic party is a collection big thieves and little thieves.

The little thieves levy tribute on the saloonkeepers, lawbreakers, push-cart peddlers, pickpockets and prostitutes.

They run the lodging houses, the dives, the fences and the polling places. They are allowed by the big thieves to sort the garbage and to keep what they find.

The big thieves are the vultures of Wall street. They are corporation lawyers and lebbyists, who hold in leash the black handers below. They are men of the white shirt bosom who give to Tammany Hall a respectable

Why have we not been able to rival our comrades in Germany, in Austro-Hungary, Italy, France, Switzerland Scandinavia, Belgium and Holland? That anxious inquiry is heard so often that an attempt to answer it seems

The reasons for our general back-wardness are twofold; political and ecanomic.

First as to political reasons. Every where in Europe the past century has seen long struggles of the rising bourgeois class against the remnants bourgeois class against the remnants of feudalistic injestications. In this struggle the working class took an active part. It received thereby a sort of political training. When the awakening came and the workers realised that it was not exactly their business to pull the chestnuts out of the fire for the new master class, they could enter the areas, not as year. could enter the arena, not as ray recruits, but as soldiers drilled in political warfare, led by men of clear vision, men whom they trusted. though not blindly.

Here in America feudalism with all its works was a dead issue. Our con-stitutions granted—on paper at least —most of the things for which labor in Europe had to battle fiercely; the suffrage, free press, free speech, free assemblage, etc.

Our working class was fed with the stock phrases of political freedom. Was not every man as good as an-Was there not equality before the law? Could not every native American become the chosen head of American become the chosen head of the nation? Did not every man have the same chance to rise by his own efforts? Was not the humblest worker our working class was taught to think It accepted all that clap trap as gospe truth, it looked down in condescend upon its brothers in Europe who had not yet attained such ous heights. They might well czars, emperors and kings. W above all that, we, the free sens of

On the other hand, individual property was made the cornerstone whole political fabric. The constitu-tion provides that nobody shall be whole political rappic. The chastle-tion provides that nobody shall be deprived of his liberty or property without due process of law. The phraseology seems to create the same safeguards for the person of the in-dividual and for the property he dividual and for the property he owns. What has become of the constitutional right of the person is now slowly dawning upon our working class. They get the lesson driven home in every great strike. The police the constabulary, the deputy sheriff the militia and the Pinkertons act as By numberless injunctions the courts allow the lesson to soak in.

While thus the constitutional right to liberty of the individual—the propertyless individual-is reduced to a empty phrase, the constitutional proof private property has tre-usly expanded. Volumes could mendously expanded. Volumes could be written about the ingenious way in which our courts have read into the phrase of "due process of law" all kinds of interpretations in the interest of capitalist property. To mention but one instance: that phrase is at the bottom of all court decisions in cases of accidents to employes, so much to that in this matter we are far behind the whole civilized world. And yet our working class has been systematically hypnotized into respect for the courts and their reading of the law. The foremost leaders of the working class—old school leaders at least—are never more earnest or close the mass from all parts of the globe. Capitalism did its full part to stimulate immigration in order to increase the mass from which it could recruit its wage playes. For the purpose of wage cutting it played race against race. The process of bringing the workers of many nationalities to the player capitalist society. It is recognized. The process of bringing the workers of many nationalities to the point where they realise their community of interest is necessarily very alow and extremely laberous.

In thus sketching some of the difference of the countered, we ought to written about the ingenious way:

On the economic fie'd other impor-

ant factors work as retarding influ ences. The development of a dis-tinct class of wage workers is a comparatively new phenomenon in Ameri ca. In Europe, capitalism found the ground prepared for its expansion beause the masses of prolaterians has been excluded from the ownership of the soil, as pointed out by Kar Marx. Aside from this important fact, organization of journeymen along craft lines had been in existence for centuries.

But in America access to the land er's hired man of this year might next season turn farmer on his own ac-Even today access to the land is far easier here than in Hence that passionat land hunger, se striking a quality of the Europ peasantry, is unknown among us. chance of turning to the soil for a liv ing exercised a powerful economic in fluence upon our working class. might even be interesting to inquire as to what extent it contributed to make the struggle for shorter more successful here than in Europe. The alternative thus left to our wage workers influenced their views as to their own position in society.

When they finally began to feel the need of organization they took as their model the British trade union move-model the British trade union move-ment, following it well nigh slavish-ly. Wet they lacked the strong class spirit of their British brothers, roused in the latter by centuries of economic dependace.

And here we ma ybe pardoned in ment oning a word about the gamb spirit so powerful among our workers.
They saw men rising to immensive sith and power right from their own mids. With fatalistic stubborn-ness they clung to the doctrine: "There is always room at the top." They failed to see that in the great economic lottery in which they were willing players there must inevitably be a hundred thousand losers to one big winner.
