ou are not a Socialist, in a way at least you FEEL that The Call is ublished in your interest. And at the same time you know that in financial way The Call has had a hard struggle to live. From the instancial way The Call has had a nard struggle to live.

Instance The Call has been kept alive by the sacrifice of those who the Mayor's gavel.

The "part-time" evil is too well known. It does not do away with congestion, nor is it economical, and it is the manking, and particularly to the Working Class.

Now, not get scared. I'm not going to ask you for money-not now. great many friends of The Call are giving One Day's Wage to enable The Call to pay its debts and to improve the paper, and to and 1907, and was opposed by the pay YOUR WAGES—that is, to pay the wages of Union Workmen. y YOUR WAGES—that is, to pay the wages of Union Workmen. Igain, I say, do not be alarmed. I do not yet ask you to give a Day's Wage to The Call. But I shall ask you to help The Call. Not for my to overcome many problems before ake, not for The Call's sake-but for YOUR OWN INTEREST.

You know how important circulation is to a newspaper. You mow that if a newspaper has a good circulation all other problems olve themselves. Well, I am going to ask you Union Printers and Stereotypers and Pressmen to take care of The Call's circulation. n, do not be worried. I shall not ask you to become a canvasser, or a peddler, or to do anything undignified—no printer must r allow himself to lose his sense of dignity. But I just want to w you how you can solve The Call's circulation problem-and at the same time help yourself. It's a fact. You can do it. How?

Take the paper. Buy The Call. Read The Call. Have it devered at your house. Purchase it at the newsstands. To have it delivered by carriers is the very best way. There are thousands of nion Printers in the field of The Call's circulation. If a good hare of you would take The Call the future of the paper would be secure-and the wages of The Call's Union employes would be semre. Does THAT interest you? It ought to. Oh, you are not orking on The Call. No? So it's of no consequence to you? Peros not. But even if you are NOT employed on The Call, it might nefit you to have others employed there. The man who IS emloyed on The Call is not looking for your job. Ever look at it that ay? Every unemployed workingman overstocks the Labor Maret. No matter what his character, no matter if he would starve ther than cut the Scale of Prices, every idle workman is a menace. The BOSS SEES HIM, even if you don't.

For your own benefit, to pay your own wages, I ask you Union rinters to take The Call and read The Call. You will get your ey's worth. If you read it a week, you will want it all the time. by Fellow Craftsmen, I expect several thousand of you to begin g and reading The Call next Monday. Order it of the newsman ODAY. vocal side of the performance, al-though numerous points of interest and of enlightenment were revealed in the acting of the work.

Mme. Sylva's Santuzza expressed in picture, gesture and utterance peasant girl of the south of Corprobably, rather than of Sicily fact when the prima donna and M Lucas were engaged in their stirring scene prior to the entrance of Lols Miaccio, rather than Vizzini, was the setting and the countrymen of the First Consul the actors. But the clear Italian accents of Lolo dispelled the vision and the south Sicilian town again was the locality. Musically the delivery of Mms. Sylva. while replete with minor faults. was agreeable and attractive.

The "Siciliana" has put to test greater voices than that of Georges Lucas and found them wanting, and the Frenchman did not surmount the exactions of the serenade. In the dyama proper, however, he figured ac-ceptably, although manifestly he lacks the temperament for the role. But the scholarliness of his work made his a thoroughly interesting performance.

The Alfie of Wilhelm Beck proved to be a characterization wholly new to New York audiences. His failure to come under the sway of the direc-tor's baton placed it almost outside the pale of musical consideration, but his acting, while somewhat phieg-matic, invited and retained attention.

Mile. Gentle, the Lola, was engage ing in her role, but sharped repeatedly in vocal execution. Mile. Severna's Mama Lucia was intelligent and thor-

AVIATORS FLY WELL

Orville Wright Breaks Height Recor and Paulhan Wins $1,000.

BERLIN, Sept. 17 .-- Orville Wright this afternoon broke all records for high flight in an aeroplane, flying 780 feet above the parade ground. The highest flight ever recorded was Hubert Latham's flight of 500 feet.

OSTEND, Sept. 17 .- Louis Paulhan, the French aviator, won the $1,000 prize today by flying two kilo-meters on the beach here in 3 minutes 15 3-5 seconds. After winning the prize, Paulhan took a trip out over the sea and returned to his starting point without landing.

JEANNETTE-KUBIAK TONIGHT.

New York Boxer Will Meet Michigan Giant in Quaker City.

Joe Jeannette, who recently stopped Sandy Ferguson at the Fairmont Club will run up against Al Kubiak, the Michigan Giant, at Philadelphia tonight. The bout is scheduled for six rounds and it looks as if Jeannette will find it a hard matter to dispose of Kubiak inside of the limit. Kubiak weighs 215 is game and can hit, but lacks science.

Jeannette will weigh thirty pounds less. He has been training over in Hoboken and is fit.

HISTORY OF THE GREAT AMERICAN FORTUNES

By Gustavus Myers.

Author of "The History of Tammany Hall." "History of Public Franchises in New York City." Etc.

PART III.

The Great Fortunes from Railroads.

Copyright, 1969, by Gustavus Myers. (Continued from Last Saturday.)

CHAPTER XXIII.—Continued. HORGAN AS "THE SAVIOR OF THE NATION." previous panegyrics lavished Morgan became stale and inidequate compared to the apotheosis of him during the panic of 1907. His first signal distinction, achieved forty-six years before, was that of ng hailed as a promisingly astute those confiemned rifles to the Union Army was the unquestionable proof. The next step in his empyrean ascent was after he had outdone Jay Gould and snatched a railroad from him. This rkable feat brought him "univerrespect." By progressive stages became lauded as a "great financier," and then, in due time, as a that celebrated "captain of industry." It and as their successors, the industrial in that direction.

The Exaltation of Rulers.

But it has been noted in the fanthat once the process of exaltation one to save? the extravagance of phraseology. The Chinese Emperor becomes the "Son "Shadow of God on Earth." Al-ready, as we have casually noted, the primitive, barbaric of God on Earth. American magnates have discovered that they are verily the "Stewards of God," and transcending the law of the land, which is more than sufficient for their purposes, they have sincoinced that their title to the resources and labor of nations comes from God Almighty himself. When popular sarction shows signs of failings and the sand to be doomed to death their title to the resources and labor of nations comes from God Almighty himself. When popular sarction shows signs of failings than giving sanction must be shown in the sanction of the savior was expected to be the inwith adulation. In the very commission of vast frauds and thefts, with adulation. In the very commission of vast frauds and the savior was expected to be the inmission of vast frauds and the fits the magnates will pose as publicspirited, patriotic men. Their purfers hasten to paint them likewise. There is no judicious waiting until time has receded, and the actual facts are more or less forgotten. The very commission of vast frauds and thefts.

But that was before the capitalist, with his more improved code of action ties of 'the magnates are at once that their title to the resources and labor of action the savior was expected to be the inmission of vast frauds and thefts.

The magnates will pose as publicspirited, patriotic men. Their purfers hasten to paint them likewise. There is no judicious waiting until time has receded, and the actual facts are more or less forgotten. The very enormithe magnates will pose as publicspirited, patriotic men. The magnates ing, then divine sanction must be ing, then divine sanction must be had come into being. Since then the transformed into acts of the greatest claimed. Superadded to this screen claim of lordship over earth, guaran-quirements of purity of character, to applicate.

|teed by compact with Heaven, the magnates feel that they must convert the sphere in which they move into a sacred one, awesome to the or-dinary mortal. And so they cause selves to be invested with grand-titles. This one becomes the "Unapproachable Philanthropist."
that the "Noble Benefactor of Man-kind." What climax of earthly splendor does Morgan reach? He become the "Savior of the Nation."

A Puzzle Unanswered.

An honest savior's until it becomes an almost adamanmission is obviously to save. But who is there to save if conditions are so well ordered, and everybody thrift. It has been noted in the fan- so happy and prosperous, that there ability by which the magnates reaped course of human institutions, is nobody that needs saving, hence their fortunes; their heroism in time

Savioring a Profitable Science.

Perplexities aside, the appearance the Turkish Sultan, the of the modern savior has unique and God on Earth." Allinstructive aspects. There was a have casually noted, the primitive, barbaric time when a like all other activities of that divinciy appointed class, the capitalist, has become a profitable science. We have seen how the capitalist saviors and grew rich while the armies died. Surely to extort hundreds of millions from a desperately situated country; to impose decayed ships, worthless guns, shoddy clothing and had food upon the navy and soldiery, must have been a recognized function of the noble art of savioring. Else, why is it that the capitalists of that time one of whom was J. Pierpont Morgan—are so glowingly depicted every-where as great patriot saviors, without whose assistance the Union cause could not have succeeded?

The Preservers of Romance. Happily, these various saviors have

What a commentary on the achieve ments of our present social system! So splendidly are things organized t the very lives of one part of huense of almagiving, of beneficence to life.

This use of the word charity alone everything the Socialists are ding. It proves the existence classes, since there exists one group up of people in a position to dole ut such alms at ther own desire and stribution of the mands of mothers we not the means to purchase purchase purchase purchase yeary to the very life of their es, while a very few people, by ating only a part of their posses-s could supply al! the bables in world with pure milk. It proves that it is no exaggeration to speak of the proletariat as "slaves," and of the is dependant on the bounty of his for h's existence; the master master for ne existence; the master can do with him what he wills. So under our present social system, the poor are dependent on the bounty of the rich for their existence; they can do with them what they will. This is clearly and underiably stated in the appeal of the physicians. They may people decide to and if they are not in the ive, why, the babies will have to that's all. The lives of one part humanity are subject to the caprice factory lest they, too, shall be dis-another part of humanity—at the placed by women.

The announcement was made a few mercy of their good will. And shall one hesitate to call this "slavery?" The ancient Greek master had the power to slay his slaves by a stroke of his sword. time, slipping like a shadow along the railings of the houses. With her skimpy figure in its shabby winy figure in its shabby winy skimpy figure, in its shabby, wispy ings of the houses, still hurrying, of black, she hardly looked as if she had course, and more like a shadow even borne six sons. She had beneath her than before. In one of her reddened hands of which, holding them carried to and fro from the house where she worked. Her face, with tired brown eyes, and hair as black and fine as silk under a black sailor hat, was skimpy, too; creased and angled like her figure, it seemed to tieny that life had ever left her strength for bearing children.

Though not yet 9 o'clock, she had already done the work of her two rooms, lighted the fire, washed the oungest boys, given the four at home their breakfast, swept, made one bed -in the other her husband was still lying-and to that husband she had served his tea. She had cut the midday ration of the two eldest boys, and, wrapping it in paper, had placed it on the window sill in readiness for them to take to school; had portioned out the firing for the day, given the eldest boy the pence to buy the daily screws of tea and sugar, washed some ragged cloths, mended a little pair of trousers, put on her hat without con-sulting the cracked looking-glass, and hurried forth. nurried forth. And, since a penny was important to her, she had walked. Having taken off the black straw hat, and changed the black and scanty dress for a blue linen frock which hid her broken the thickness of brown paper, she was deemed ready to begin her labors. And while on her knees she scrubbed and polished, a certain sense of pleasur-able rest would come to her; gazing into the depths of brass that she had made to whine, she thought of nothing. On some mornings she workd a little stiffly. This was when her husband, returning from late discussion at his public house, had struck her with his belt, to show he was her master. On such mornings, she was longer polishing the brass, often forced to twice, having put her eyes to And she would think over and over again: 'He didnt ought to hit me, he didn't ought to treat me like he does, and me the mother of his Thus far her thoughts would carry her, but-she was a simthat her sons, born and brought up by a drunken father, would some day carry on the glorious traditions of life. Silently passing up the narrow stairs, whose noticeable odor she never noticed, she would enter the front room. Here her four sons, their eyes fixed on the door would be sitting or sprawling on the bed, teasing each other angrily, like young birds waiting for a meal. Taking off her hat, she would sit down to rest. But seeing her thus sitting, doing nothing, her sons would try to rouse her to activity, pulling her by the sleeve, jogging her chair, and the youngest, perhaps, kissing her with his little dirty mouth. Rising, she would begin to peel potatoes. She peeled them fast, working the up-turned knife-blade close to her thin bosom, and round her the boys, affecting not to care now that they saw her orking, resumed their restless teasing of each other, casting impatient glances at the busy knife-blade, the falling yellow slips of peel. At short intervals, when she was not too deady tired, she would snap at them a litile, but her power of speech was limitthe things she said had all been to them much. Yet, they were good to her according to their lights, prefer-

But on Saturdays it would be different, for on Saturdays her man would not return until he was compelled by the closing of his public house to beat at 8 o'clock, and it would go on beating louder and louder as the hours went by, till as she would have pressed it, she felt "fit to drop." yet, all those hours, while her sons were sleeping, there was at work a strange poison in her soul, a dull fever of revolt, in preparation for the blows that would be given her if he came in drunk—a sort of perverse spirit, vouchsafed by Providence, bringing those blows nearer, almost inviting them, yet keeping her alive beneath At the midnight striking of the sickening leap under the malodorous and blackened quilt, and she would lie trying to pretend to sleep. So old was that device, so useless—yet she never gave it up, for her brain was not s fertile one. Soon after would begin his footsteps, slow, wavering, coming up and up, with pauses, with mutterings, with now and then a heavy stumble. Her breath would come in gasps, and her eyes, just opening, would glue themselves to where the door showed dimly by the sputtering candlelight. Slowly that door would open, and he would enter. Through her slits of eyes she would look at him as he stood swaying there. And sud-denly the angry thought that there he was—the sot that had druhken up her earnings and his own-would give her a dull buzzing in her head; and ar left her. Not though he tear away the blackened quilt, pull her out of bed, and shower blows. was there anything within her but a dull, shrill, waspish anger, shooting from her tongue and eyes. Only when Crimson are mine, and there the stain he had finished, and rolled on to the bed to sleep like a dead man, did she feel the pains that he had given her. Then, dragging her feet slowly, she would creep back beneath the quilt, and cover up her face

But some Saturdays he would come back before the clock had struck 12; and, standing by the door, with the light falling on his face, would look at her, swaying but slightly with his lower lip hanging very loose. Over his face, as he stood there, would ad a leering smile, and he would all her by her name.

Then in her dingy bed she would know that she still had work to do.

And with no smile on her tired face, no joy in her thin body, no thought of anything in her starved brain, not even of the countless children she had borne in her dim alleys to this half-drunken man, nor of the countless children she had still to bear-she would lie waiting.—In "A Commentary," published by G. P. Putnam's Sons.

A WOMAN JUDGE.

Judge Mary H. Cooper, of Beloit, Kan., is the only woman probate judge n the United States. She performs more marriages than any Kansas minister. This is because she always omits the word "obey" from the ceremonyan omission that pleases the Kansas girls. Judge Cooper believes in the capable and strong woman. She thinks that the day of the clinging, helpless woman is past. She said in a recent in-terview: "In the strong and independ-ent woman's hands, in the fighting wo-man's hands, our sex's future rests. ### TAFT ON LABOR.

After promising the assembled representative exploiters of Boston that he will propose no legislation disturbing to legitimate business interests and that he will push forward the project of a central national bank; after exonerating Ballinger from all blame in connection with the conservation policy and the Cunningham coal lands scandal, thereby administering a rebuke to the implacable foe of the land grabbers, Chief Forester Pinchot, and ordering the dismissal of Mr. Glavis-the President of Wall street delivered himself, at Chicago, of his sentiments on labor.

He is a friend of organized labor, but he is also the friend of Farley's and Berghoff's men. His love for organized labor is intense, all-consuming, but "all advantages of trade unionism, great as they are, cannot weigh a feather in the scale against the right of any man lawfully seeking employment to work for whom and for what price he will." All the rights and interests of labor count as nothing by comparison with the inalienable right of capital to pay the least ount of wages for the longest working day. The "freedom of labor," that is to say, the freedom of capital to exploit labor, must be preserved at all costs. My sentiments are with the union, but my law, my injunctions, my police, militia, army, and all the powers of my government are with the employers.

But alas, a father must at times chastise his child, and notwithstanding Mr. Taft's profound love for the union he feels compelled to acknowledge that labor organizations sometimes show "defective tendencies that ought to be corrected," presumably by the bovementioned means. Organized labor is not entitled to our sympathy when it "permits itself to sympathize with violent methods, with breaches of the law," for example, "boycotts and other methods of undue duress." To be sure, boycotts are legal in a monarchy verging close on absolutism like the German Empire, but they must not be tolerated in a republic. Strikes and lockouts are permissible, because in them the "duress" of hunger, which is perfectly "due" and proper, agrees with the Socialists that the is inflicted on labor, but boycotts are a breach of the law, because cause of misery lies in the social and they inflict "undue duress" on the employers.

Another "notable defect" of organized labor gives much pain to sation, he falls to see its wide reach. Mr. Taft's heart-its disposition to put a limit upon the labor expenditure of the workers, its refusal to permit pace-setting. But Mr. Taft consoles himself with the belief that "there is a movement bor, unsanitary tenements and work also their source. among trade unions themselves to correct this leveling tendency" and to permit their members to compete with one another, just like respectable members of society.

In the last election President Gompers attempted to enter upon a course of mischief making. He attempted to pull over to Bryan the labor vote, "which had theretofore been evenly divided between the Republicans and the Democrats"—the only proper condition for the labor vote if it is to continue a nullity. But fortunately that attempt dustrial section of the modern world their fruit is misery.

But in Dr. Devine's work there aplabor vote if it is to continue a nullity. But fortunately that attempt failed ignominiously. And now Mr. Taft, who can forget and forgive, overflows with praise for "those who are now in active control -the Federation of Labor and all the great railroad organizations," who "have set their faces like flint against the propagandism of Socialistic principles" and "are in favor of the rights of property and our present institutions."

In recognition of this noble stand against Socialism Mr. Taft will reward them with a recommendation to the next Congress to legislate on the subject of injunctions in order to avoid the "few" legislate on the subject of injunctions in order to avoid the "few disappear.

He does of abuses that can be cited against the Federal courts."

Wherewith labor should certainly be completely satisfied. - :0: -

THE SCOUNDREL'S LAST REFUGE.

The employes of the Pressed Steel Car Company found, upon returning to work, that strikebreakers had been retained as bosses. Peace was, of course, impossible. Again the shops were deserted.

Then that time-worn enemy of the working class, dissension, and rejoice to see wages forced down below the standard below the s made its appearance. "Americans," rallying about "their" flag, dared the hated "foreigners" to attack them.

To anyone at all familiar with the methods of warfare upon strikers, the situation presents nothing remarkably new. Strikes which are won are won through unity. Therefore the seeds of dissension must be scattered. For this purpose spies are employed. At McKees Rocks the right moment was selected to wave the flag and call to the Americans to separate themselves from the unclean.

The foreign-born workers were then either nagged into making an In other words, can these direct And he The foreign-born workers were then either nagged into making an attack or an attack was made on them. Then the war of worker against worker was on and fifty men were injured, while the capitalists laughed in their sleeves and applauded their agents provocateurs

To their last refuge have the scoundrels retreated—the paid stimulation of a patriotism they themselves despise.

Editor of The Call:

JOHN MITCHELL MAKES DENIAL

In your issue of September 13 there appears, under the caption, "Labor's Duty and John Mitchell," an article which that gentleman undertakes to criticise me, basing his strictures upon the assumption that I submitted to Justice Gould an article contributed to The American Federationist and
