The two conversed for some time, and in the midst of the discussion Mrs. Mary C. Thaw arrived. The elder Mrs. Thaw was naturally as much astonished as her son to see Evelyn at the asylum. The three en-gaged in an earnest talk for about half an hour, however.

Its result was apparently very unsatisfactory to Evelyn, for at its conclusion she arose from her chair in anger and said, "I shall never come to see you again."

"The Socret Marriaga" by Domenico and pain, of healthy, strong mechanics sunk to the level of tramps

> It was a dreadful night, a night of rain, of snow, of slush and cold. It seemed nature was not aware that it was a day set aside for thanksgiving. a day which brought to the majority sides, happy homes and cheerful festivities With the characteristic crua severity that made poverty nore poignant and rendered want nore painful. It was the first snow of the season and caught the men unaware. Those who applied for bread came early and stood for hours beneath the soft snow that melted the minute it struck the shivering men and penetrated the worn-out clothing, striking the bodies, chilling them to the very bones. When a reporter of The Call passed the place at 10:30 he saw men waiting in the rain, though it had been announced that the doors would not open until two and a half hours later.

Gulp With Ravenous Hunger.

The line was not as large as was expected, due to the fact, it was ex-plained, that the weather made it impossible for many te wait until so late an hour. Shelter was the most nec-essary problem that night, and they who had found a bed, or a covered wagon, or a nook at a dock, stuck to it with the tenacity of a drowning man clinging to a raft. It was only the "surplus" that came, they who had been condemned to a night of wandering, and to probable sicks or death through exposure.

Thirty minutes before the doors had been thrown open the problem of lodging was considered by J. G. Hallimond and J. T. Hunt, the men in charge of the institution. Telephones to several lodging houses brought the reply that most of them were filled. Then it was that the men present began to empty their pockets of all the change, and a handful of dimes was handed over to Hunt, who was to use his discretion in the distribution.

The new quarters of the Bowery Mission is situated on the Bowery near Rivington street, and the entrance to the bread line is through a cellar fac the bread line is through a cellar fac-ing the Bowery. The minute the doors opened the men rushed in a single line, grasping the cups of coffee and the rolls with hands that were numb with cold. In most case half of the contents of the cups were spilt in the tremulous effort to drink it.

The hunger of the men was the enty days. It is against the law for a most positive and the most painful police judge to sentence a prisoner to feature of the occasion. BERGER ON EUROPE

ary European Movement.

Victor Berger, the well known Mil-Socialist leader, has just re turned from a three months Euro-pean trip, during which he repre-sented the American Socialist party at the meeting of the Internation cialist Bureau in Brussels held this month.

When interviewed in this city, where he stopped for a day on his return journey, Berger expressed himself as greatly encouraged by the growth of Socialist sentiment in Europe and the strength of the Euro-pean political and industrial organizations of the working class, especially in Austria, his native land.

Asked about the action taken by the International Socialist Bureau re-sarding the request of the Socialist party of America that the Socialist Labor party of America be deprived of its representative in the bureau and his seat be given to the Socialis party, because the S. L. P. repre party, because the S. L. P. repre-sented only about 3 per cent of the Socialist voters in America. Berger said that the bureau had not felt it-self authorized to decide such a question and consequently had amounced that the American delegates at the In-ternational Socialist Congress to be held in Copenhagen next summer would be allowed to choose the two American members of the bureau.

According to Berger, the European labor leaders regarded the statements made by President Samuel Gomper of the American Federation of Labo during his trip last summer as mostly hot air, and Gompers' influence upon the labor movement on the other side of the big pond was absolutely unno-

Berger visited the principal cities of the Continent and Great Britain and everywhere found the Socialist and union men extremely interested in the revolutionary movement in America and anxious to learn the real condi-tions on this side. The British labor movement was more class cons than the American, declared Berger, and he believed that Kier Hardle was right in remaining with the Inde-pendent Labor party in the Labor party, instead of going it alone, as the Labor party was becoming more So-cialistic every day.

Nicaraguan Rebels May Be Recognized. No More News Received From Caldera.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25 .- A report was received today from Com-mander J. H. Shipley, commanding the Des Moines, which has arrived at Port Limon after making an investigation, at the direction of Secretary of State Knox, of the blockade maintained by the Nicaraguan insurgents at Greytown.

by State Department officials, it is probable that this report will determine whether or not the United States government will recognize the blockade and possibly the beligerency of the revolutionary movement.

The Des Moines has been at Greytown for two days, during which time it is believed ample investigation ould have been made.

It is also possible that the report contains information bearing upon the execution of Grace and Cannon which took place nearby. No dis-patches were received today from Managua, and until accurate inform forthcoming, the United States will take no further action.

Some uneasiness is felt over the silence of the American consulate at the Nicaraguan capital. There is a possibility that Vice-Consul Caldera may be unable to forward despatche been interfered with in making the investigation called for by the State baked, was chronicled in newspapers all over the country. All day long the White House looked for the pie. From the door-keepers to the President himself everybody was on the qui vive. The secret service men were on the lookout. The morning passed slowly. President Taft came out of the executive office to enter his automobile to hurry to St. Patrick's Church. As he passed he called to the White House newspaper writers: "Waiting for the pie! It's all a fake." Still Washington waited and watched. Hours passed and the Presi-dent went to walk with Attorney Gen-eral Wickersham, General Clarence R. Edwards and Captain Rutt. The White House 'phone are the secretaries kept informing those who called that no pie had appeared on the Presidential horizon. At last coulent it was announced finally that the pie had not arrived and no word had been heard of it.

The poor, of course, have no money, so instead of getting some comfort out of a Pullman berth they secure old papers and spread them on the brick floor of the boiler room, find a chunk of coal for a pollow and fret away in jerking slumber till they wake up with the grim reality again staring them in the face that the company is still unwilling to make reasonable ef-forts to get the bodies of their brothers, husbands and sons out of the hell severely.

Coal Brought Up First.

In broken words little Albert Buckle told Seymour Stedman the terrible Albert, who is under age and small said that ten carloads of coal were hoisted while the men and boys clam to the surface out of the suffocation

Despite the fact that State Factors look at the pale faced boy would con vince any one not a mine boss that the boy is not sixteen.

Andrew Steele, who works in the mines at Novinger, Mo., and John Steele, of Mystic, Iowa, also a miner, took the first train after they had heard of the Cherry disaster to help escue their brother, Peter Steele, w is one of the entombed victims in the St. Paul fire trap.

They worked day and night to find their brother, but were not allowed to make such efforts as would bring results.

"I don't believe," said Andrew Steele, "that the company has wanted to do anything but to protect their own property from fire. After run-ning air into several of the main enon the west side it was imporsible to get into branch entries, where most of the bodies are

"Several of us happened to get away from the 'experts' and came upon th starved men, who were gasping for air and hungering for food

"For several days we had all passed up and down the main entry and been within fifteen feet of the door that enclosed the lilving men, but the 'experts' never gave us a chance to see if there were any men there, living or dead."

BUTTS' DECISION

Court Magistrate Uph Right to Boycott.

Magistrate Butts has filed the folor of the case of sol metric and was discharged by Magistrate Butts has filed the following memorandum of his decision in the case of Sol Metz, a striking dry goods clerk, who was arrested list Saturday for making a boycett speech and was discharged by Magistrate Butts when arraigned in the Night Court

Court.

"It seems there is a strike, and there was a meeting held by the strikers i Forsythe street this night, and the de fendant was one of the speakers at that meeting. And it seems the con-test is between what is known, as described in the evidence, as union and some sort of an agreement or us standing that those connected with the strike, and who were operating stores, should display in their store wind should display in their store windows the fact, as evidenced by a placard of some kind, that that store was a union store. And some of them did display these signs. But the complainant did not, and during the course of the meeting this defendant advises those present to give their patronage to union stores, and not give their patronage to stores which were non union. And he pointed to the defend ant's place as a store of the description that was non-union, and which he intended should not be patronized by hose whom he addressed.

"Now, was that or was that not a violation of law? The right of free neech must always be maintainedis accompanied by some appeal to the hearers of the speaker, wherein vio-lence may be advocated. But a man who is a union man has a right to advise his hearers to buy only of union men. as long as he does not attach any penalty, or urge any violence against those persons in the same trade who are union men or affiliated with union organizations.

"This defendant simply pointed, as an illustration, to the complainant's according to the testimony. there were three other places there three of these displayed the ca which gave notice that persons doing business there were affiliated with union labor, and one that was not so lesignated and one that was not so affiliated. "I find that this defendant had

right to speak in the manner that he did. There was no violence; there was no threat of violence. There was no such interference with the rights of the complainant as to constitute a vio lation of law, and the defendant is discharged.

ALTMANS NOT GUILTY OF USING DYNAMITE

Jury Brings in Verdict Acquitting Union Men of Blowing Up Factory.

CHICAGO, Nov. 25 .- The jury in the case of Vincent and Joseph Altman, accused of wrecking the plant of the Standard Sash and Door Com pany with dynamite today returned a verdict of not guilty. The deliberations of the jury began last night at 11:30 and at 2 a.m., when no verdict seemed probable, the men went to bed. Closing his argument late yester day, Assistant States Attorney Shor ridiculed the charge of counsel for the defense that the trial was the result of a police "job." Short asserted that the evidence showed the de-fendants had acted as agents of labor union readers who wished to injure men with whom they disagreed. Following evidence that the ex-plosion at the Standard Sash and Door Company did not come till long after the fire was raging hotly, em-ployers as witnesses in Judge Tut-hill's court, charged that injury to their buildings had followed their refusal to order their employes to leave the Amalgamated Wood Work-ers and join the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiner

John Olson, president of the Standard Sash and Door Company, for the burning of whose plant Vincent and Joseph Altman were tried, was the

The case against the Altmans was "worked up" under the direction of Inspector Lavin, whose right hand man, Sergeant Sheehan, sat beside Assistant State's Attorneys Short and Sutherland. Mrs. Vincent Altman sat in court and listened to every word of the testimony. Bruno Verra, said by labor men to have been "bought body and soul," had finished his recital of his alleged early acquaintance with cent and Joseph Altman and his al leged collaboration with them in the making of bombs. Vincent Altman turned to his friends and said: "That man, Verra, is the d liar that ever lived." President Olson, of the Standard Sash and Door Company, whose plant was destroyed by fire, admitted on the witness stand that he had not had any unpleasant relation with Vincent Altman when Altman was acting as the assistant business agent for Local 58 of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners,

Only 5 per cent of the men had overcoats; those who had them had no coats beneath. All the men were med to spend the night outdoors Many of them opened up their coats and wrapped their bodies in paper, preparing for a night of wandering

There are two reasons why the food is given at so late an hour Superintendent Hallimond explained that the Bowery Mission is constantly criticized for supporting "impostor and helping the "unworthy" to get a cup of coffee. Their very appearance at that time testifies to their need. The second reason, and the most valid is that for those who have to walk the streets the entire night, this hour is the most appropriate, breaking into the ordeal, giving them dition to the meal.

The men remained in the cellar from 1 o'clock until 1:53, when the doors closed again. They all dis-persed in various directions, walking

TOWN AT AUCTION

By British Landlord.

BELFAST, Nov. 25 .- The unique incement was made here today that the prosperous town of Dungan non, in County Tyrone, will be put up for auction within a few days Several wealthy men intend looking the town over with a view to buying it entire. Dungannon belongs, lock, and barrel to the Earl of Rasfures and the latter, in need of a little ready cash, is auctioning it off, either as a whole or in parcels. The town widely known as a mecca for Irish historians, as it is rich in ruins and read by intelligent workers. Advertise in the

When we come to account for this want of organization among immi-grant women, to analyze conditions which plunge thousands into a struggle for existence under adverse cir es, we are facing a labyring of conflicting economic conditions and diverging sentimental reasons, emo-tions and illusions. The relation of organized labor to immigrant women is that of indifference, of neglect. The immigrant man is sometimes thrown a labor organization because otherwise he cannot work at his trade. Immigrant women, however, have een let severely alone, except by cago, which recently undertook inves-tigations into the conditions of life of

ARGUMENTS AGAINST SUFFRAGE ABSURD.

"Even df." said Henry George, "in a ruder state of society, the intelligence of one sex suffices for the management of common interests, the vastly more intricate, more delicate and more important questions which ad by Polish girls is that of the progress of civilization makes of public moment require the intelligence of women as of men, and that we never can obtain until we interest them in public affairs. . . much of the inattention, the flippancy, the want of conscience, which we see manifested in regard to public matters of the greatest moment arises from the fact that we debar women from taking their proper part in these matters." The arguments of those tho fundamentally oppose woman's suffrage are every year looked upon as more absurd. We laugh at the idea that Fred Busse is a better municipal housekeeper than Jane Addams, or Charley Murphy than Florence Kelley. The only question fairly in dispute is one of pace. On side are the militant suffragists. on the other those like Ida Tarrbell would prefer to see the suffrage grow through women's increased use of her present opportunities.—Coller's.

BETTER NO SUFFRAGE AT ALL.

The people of Ginter Park, the most fashionable and the wealthiest suburb of Richmond, have formally granted suffrage to women. At a meeting of the Citizens' Association. the governing body of the suburb, a constitution and by-laws were adopt-ed, one provision of which is that males and females, white and 21 years of age, owning property and living in Ginter Park, and sub-scribing to the constitution and bylaws, have a right to vote." Richmond suburb is the first community in the South to take this step.

SUFFRAGE PERIODICALS.

Great Britain has three papers and two first-class magazines devoted to woman suffrage. Holland, Denmark Norway, Sweden, Germany, Austria, Russia, Finland, Iceland, France, Switzerland, Bulgaria, Hungary and have a woman suffrage paper, which advocates the enfranchisement of women, though this is not its chief object. In those publications twelve languages are represented, and in each case the paper managed by women In the United States there are sever woman suffrage papers, and the in-ternational Woman Suffrage Alliance has a monthly paper published at

THE CALL CAN SUPPLY YOU

"A Study Course in Socialism" ring in The Call each Saturday.

Address Orders, BOOK DEPARTMENT,

CONCERTED ACTION MEANS SUCCESS

It seems to me that it is about time for us all to learn that to con conducting The Call in this most expensive manner does not pay the army of Comrades who are contributing to its support; and it also hinders it reaching the point of self sustainment. Until the old debts are out of the way no real beneficial progress can be made.

Therefore, Comrades, instead of a few dozen sending in cor day, a few more tomorrow, and so forth and so on each day, month after month, why not let all of us, at one time—RIGHT NOW—as we read this every last man or woman who wants The Call send in a contribution, a dollar, five dollars, ten dollars, whatever can be spared, and make the sum total a few thousand dollars, which a mount will be of lasting benefit to the paper. Don't delay—don't wait to find out if your Comrades are also going to respond. But sit down immediately upon reading this and forward what you can, together with your opinion of The Call as a Socialist newspaper.

Everyone who reads this should act at once as suggested, and I appear you. Comrades, all of you, to make one more grand united effort RIGHT

You should all do so. It is not only your duty, but your privilege as a Socialist to do so, and Saturday's and Monday. mail will show not the receipt of a few hundred dollars, just enough to pay an item or two BUT A FEW THOUSAND DOLLARS. Tomorrow is pay day for most of you. I hope you will not fail to remember The Call when you get your pay en-

This one concerted effort will save a large sum of money for us-talists and friends of The Call, for it will enable us to pay old debte establish a credit for future purchases to better advantage than now.

Won't you do your part, and don't you think this extra effort on the part of all is worth while? THEN TOMORROW, COMRADES. REMEM-BER. It should contain thousands of letters with contributions to wipe out the old debts and to begin anew. To give the Comrades who are work-ing so unselfishly on The Call a chance to make good. Remember, several thousand dollars in tomorrow's and Monday's mail will give the management a chance to do some real work—PROGRESSIVE

THEN GIVE THEM THE CHANCE. SEVERAL THOUSAND DOL LARS FROM SEVERAL THOUSAND FRIENDS ALL AT ONE TIME-ALL IN ONE DAY—AND THE CALL WILL BE SAVED FOREVER. The more shricking, no more agonizing cries for help; for with a sand dollars right now the Comrades in charge will make good. My contribution will be there on time. I hope several thousand accompany it in the same mail.

DISFRANCHISING THE WORKERS.

The refusal of Judge Reed in Clifford, Wis., to grant naturalization papers to Finns who were reported to him to be Socialists, is a able instance of the ever-growing tendency to deprive workingmen of the franchise.

In this city foreign-born workingmen find it increasingly difficult to become naturalized.

In the South the disfranchisement of the negroes has everywhere entailed the simultaneous disfranchisement of a large number of the poor whites.

In several states of the North and West the exercise of the ballot by workingmen, native and foreign-born, is being hedged around with ore and more difficulties.

Obstacles of every sort are being invented to the rise of new

The motive behind this movement for franchise restrictions is perfectly plain.

Thus in Clifford, Wis., it was the spies of the local sawmill eny who furnished information to Judge Reed concerning the olitical opinions of the applicants for naturalisation. The town ses do not want to be disturbed in their career of misrule by a Socialist electorate.

Pure and simple trade unionists, "direct action" industrialists and anarchists may despise voting as a vain and foolish thing. The capitalists know the value of the ballot and are doing all in their power to create a class of political helots.

SOCIAL CAUSES, NOT INDIVIDUAL CHARACTER.

According to a statement issued by the joint application bureau maintained by the Charity Organization Society and the Society for Trade Unions in this generalization. Improving the Condition of the Poor, the number of applications for Within the last fifteen years we have trade union officials. relief received in the last three years, ending September 30, were as follows: 1907, 20,781; 1908, about 42,000; and 1909, about 30,000.

It is cold, dry figures of this kind that show the utter worthlessness of the individualistic view of approaching social problems and seeking their explanation or solution.

According to the individualists, or moralists as they may also be termed, the lot of every man is determined by his own ability and character, his industry or his laziness, his thrift or his extravagance. The wealth of the rich is ascribed to their superior qualities; the poverty of the poor to their inferior qualities.

Now, what do the cold, dry figures quoted above indicate? They show conclusively that the tide of pauperism rises and falls with the general rise and fall of industrial activity. During the highly prosperous year 1907 the number of applicants for aid was less than onehalf of the number in the following year of industrial depression and financial panic, while in 1909 the number was reduced by over onefourth from the preceding year, owing to the commercial and industrial recovery.

Is there the slightest evidence to show that the ability or the character of the class from which these applicants for charity are recruited has undergone the least changes for better or for worse in these years? None whatsoever. The only change was in their environment, in the social conditions under which they lived.

A single individual here or there may be able to rise above or may fall below his social level. The mass of mankind are unable to life and death struggle to protect themselves from paying to the bossess

But the fluctuations in the mass of poverty and misery produced by the capitalist system by no means correspond exactly to the fluctuations in industrial and commercial activity. For while some of the factors which go to determine the well-being or misery of the workers move in the same direction as the general industrial movement, other factors move in a contrary direction.

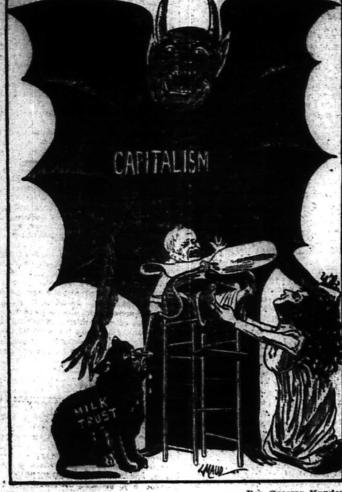

The lack or abundance of opportunities for employment deter ines the total income of the working class. This factor corresponds directly to the periodic industrial movement of prosperity, stagnation, and panic.

On the other hand, the health and general physical well-being of the workers may, beyond a certain point, move in an exactly contrary direction. The strain of overwork in times of prosperity results in a deteriorated physical condition, notwithstanding the increased inme; while the lack of work may, notwithstanding the resulting vation, improve the physical condition owing to the enforced rest and the absence from the depressing and deleterious factory atmos-

This fact was first pointed out by Karl Marx, who found that the mortality of the cotton operatives of Lancashire, England, had fallen off during the years of depression in the cotton industry resulting from our Civil War. And as our German organ, the New York Volkszeitung, pointed out, the mortality in Sweden also fell off to a remarkable extent during the months in which the General Strike attained its maximum strength. The same phenomenon has also been erved by the officials of the Workmen's Sick and Death Benefit Society, the mortality among its members having uniformly decreased in times of strike or enforced idlene

Similarly, the number of industrial accidents (according to the stimony of L. W. Hatch, chief statistician of the Labor Bureau of the State of New York, before the Wainwright Commission on Employers' Liability) rises in years of industrial prosperity and falls in and continues to talk as he swings it query of the man out of a job in Cooprs of industrial depression. That the increased number of accits and greater mortality contribute their share to the mass of truth that the well-being or misery of the masses is produced by nisery, hardly needs to be pointed out. But these are forms of the social causes over which the individual has no control. The method Bute which the working class is forced to pay to the general social of the parson or charity worker who, seeing only the individual in-

Marx might have also included seen the ruling powers using all their cunning to cripple the offensive and defensive powers of the unions until trade unions are bound hand and foot.

Mr. Gompers and his friends have voluntarily chosen to limit the of-fensive and defensive action of trade unions. First, they have cast aside as useless, political action. Second, they have condemned the sympathetic strike. Third, they have urged craft solidarity instead of working class solidarity.

As a result they nave limited the fighting resources of the unions to two -the boycott and the trade The label is part of the boycott idea, and a large war-chest is part of the strike idea.

Morris never "returned to the Social Democratic Federation." It is true that before the close of his life he did become reconciled with his old friend, H. M. MARX THE LOVER.

When Karl Marx was a tiny toddle he was the pet of his sister Sophie Nearly four years older than he, So phie dearly loved to play the part of "Little Mother" to her handsome, curly-headed and mischievious brother. A real live baby brother is so much better than a doll!

Sophie had also a playmate, a few months older than herself, daughter of a Prussian official, Baron von side Westphalen, a generous romantic man, proud of the fact that he was half Scotch, descended from that unthe Socialist League." As a personal fortunate Earl of Argyle, who was ted to write her hung by order of James II. in the market place at Edinburgh, Westphalen's little daughter was baptized Johanna Bertha Julie Jenny, de but happily she never felt the burden of her name. Everybody called her Jenny and forgot all about the other three-fourths of her baptismal appellation. Handsome and curly-headed. she seemed more like the little Kurl than his own sister. Between them, Jenny and Sophie initiated little Karl mainly in incitement to riot the payment the parents, his teachers, and all the other boys in the sleepy little town of Trier. The boys who play with girls are generally pale, who play with girls are generally pale. manly and mischlevious, as a healthy and normal youngster should be Among the boys of the neighborhood he was always a leader, full of fun and frolic.

But he was loyal to his first playmates. He loved to play with Sophie and Jenny, and the boys were often angry because he refused to leave the girls and join their games. Sometimes they taunted him and called him a "missy," but not often: Kurl could numb straight and hard, and he could numb straight and hard, and he was to be employed. could punch straight and hard, and he had a sharp tongue. Gentle as a girl when playing with girls, he could fight and wrestle with the roughest lads of his age. So they let him alone generally and wondered why he was so until the themselves.

By the time the two girls had grown tail enough to have their divesses "let down," Karl had passed through the local school and was thinking of entering the university. He still preferred to spend most of his spare time with Jenny von Westphalen, but Sophie was no longer their inseparable companion. "Two's company, but three's a crowd," you know.

Then the tongues of all the local gossips began to wag. Sure, they would make a handsome couplewasn't Karl the best looking young fellow in town, and Jenny the acknowledged beauty with half the lads at her feet? What a pity Herr Marx wasn't as wealthy as the old Baron, for then there could be nothing against a match which the gods. Baron, for then there could be nothing against a match which the gods and wear it proudly; she had so obviously intended. But of Karls' picture from the bot course the old Baron von Westphalen would insist upon a better match for all could see and admire; his daughter—Poor Karl! Poor Jenmust be no letters! Poor Jenmust be no letters! Poor Jenmust be no letters! my!—so the tongues wagged. Old women—and younger ones, too, for that matter—shook their heads grave-ly as the beautiful pair passed down the street.

Then Jenny and Sophle were seen together, without Karl. Hope lit the eyes of the young men of Trier; with Karl away at the University their chances of winning the beautiful Jenny's favors seemed to be greatly increased. Rich, handsome and clever, and genial withal, Jenny von Westphales were a price worth winning.

The gossips observed that Jenny grew haggard and pale. "Shame on the father!" they cried. "It is easy to see that the girl is breaking her heart because she cannot wed young Marx. Shame on the Baron for setting up his thalers as a barrier to

So ran their chatter. Also, word came that Karl was pining away in Berlin, and forthwith the old Baron was accused of double murder-al-

The gossips didn't know that the old Baron was innocent enough. Karl was too much like his own child, too much like Jenny's brother, for their love to seem dangerous. He might have welcomed the fact had he seen it. Well, when Karl went back to the university, to Berlin, after a fruitless year at Bonn, he rejoiced greatly. Jenny and he were engaged. Distracted, he wrote peetr of manuscript full of amorous about "enchanting eyes." when Karl grew big enough to attend school he still continued to be the playmate of Sophie and Jenny.
